The President's Veto. Mellon and Lord Chatham. Get Your Automobile. Procter-Gamble Soldiers.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YESTERDAY the Senate interested itself in a new veterans bill, the original bill, giving $103,000,000 a year more to veterans, having been vetoed by President Hoover.

Some disagreed with the veto, but nobody will deny that it required courage. There is only a loss of votes, next time, in the veto. There would have been many votes to gain by signing it.

THE PRESIDENT pointed out that $70,000,000 of the $103,000,000 a year would go to men not injured in the war, also that the government now pays $500,000,000 a year to war veterans.

At that rate, if we had had as many casualties as France had, or Germany, all the money in the United States would not pay the pension account.

SOME, disturbed by depressed business, may find comfort in news that our "best" people are happy and gay as ever.

More of them are in Europe this year than last, more of them at desirable United States resorts, especially Bar Harbor and Newport.

All this you learn from the Social Register, of New York, the real one, not the imitation registers that organized "to supply exclusiveness to the masses."

WASHINGTON says Secretary Mellon will devote his vacation to teaching banking and corporation management to his son, Paul, back from a post-graduate course at Cambridge.

An attentive son can learn more from his father than from a thousand professors put together, if his father KNOWS. And Mr. Mellon does know.

IN A GRAVE in Westminster Abbey, a father and son lie side by side: Pitt, who kept Napoleon out of England, and his father, the Earl of Chatham.

Pitt, a delicate boy, was taught in youth by his father, and later studied statesmanship at his father's dinner table, listening to Chatham and other older men. He entered the House of Commons, and was chancellor of the exchequer at 22, and prime minister at 23.

AUTOMOBILE companies report sales greatly diminished in June.

This means that many Americans are making a serious mistake. Efficiency and rapid motion go together: you wouldn't think much of a bird that decided to economize by doing without wings. Better do without something else.

AN AUTOMOBILE, wisely bought, used and cared for, is not an extravagance for any man. It is a necessary part of modern equipment, and to do without it is the worst kind of "false economy."

PROCTER AND GAMBLE, which is the family name of Ivory soap, is reported to have purchased the French Cadum soap company, one of the biggest in Europe, with a business of $25,000,000 a year.

The Procter and Gamble people are considering other purchases of soap companies in Britain, France and Germany.

In the days of Caesar and Lucullus, men went out to conquer nations with men.

Now dollars do the work and are the soldiers conquering more quietly, more surely.

MR. LINGLE, reporter for the Chicago Tribune, murdered, turns out to have been deep in the plans, and probably sharing the profits of gangsters, according to detectives' statements. His salary was $60 a week, and his income $60,000 a year.

The most serious statement in this lamentable exposure is that Lingle dealt in police promotion. To be made police lieutenant the charge was $1,-000, for a captain, $5,000.

No wonder some of the police turn to graft and gangsters, when the position they hold is part of a graft system.

THE INCIDENT in no way discredits the Chicago Tribune, which knew nothing of Lingle's underworld life.

However, Col. McCormick and Maj. Patterson, whose ownership controls the Tribune, will want to know what particular individual in the Tribune organization DID know of Lingle's activities, supporting him with the Tribune's authority and presumably sharing his profits.

HOPE springs eternal.

Mr. Andrew McCampbell, new prohibition boss in New York, says he will check rum, and asks New Yorkers please to change their habits. You might as well ask the leopard to change his spots: he can only do it, as has been said, by getting up from one spot and moving to another. The New Yorker can change his habits only by getting up from one speakeasy and moving to another.

CITY, COUNTY PUSH PLANS ON GUARD RAILS

Higher Curbs on Bridges, Highways Proposed in Plan to Protect Motorists

While city and county authorities pushed plans to protect motorists from plunging over bridges or down cliffs on roads poorly guarded, another machine today crashed through a guardrail and down an embankment into Turtle Creek.

Two men narrowly escaped death or serious injury and were rushed to the McKeesport Hospital suffering from shock.

The accident occurred at a curve in Airbrake avenue, Wilmerding. The men were employes of an A. & P. truck bound with a load of produce for Scottdale.

Blinded by the headlights of another machine, the driver of the truck, Herman Fritz, 25, of 112 Jucunda street, steered into the guardrail, which offered little resistance. Then the machine plunged over branch tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad into Turtle Creek.

Fritz and his helper, Anthony Aloisio, 17, of 934 Amanda street, were able to free themselves from the machine and make their way to shore.

GIRL, 7, STRUCK BY AUTO

Gertrude Munsch, 7, of 1130 Arlington avenue, is in the South Side Hospital with a broken right leg and severe head lacerations because of her eagerness to hear a Salvation Army band.

The child darted away from her mother at Arlington and Warrington avenues today and started across the street to where the band was standing when she was run down by an automobile, police reported.

Joseph Redlinger, 21, of 1120 Warrington avenue, driver of the machine, took the child and her mother to the hospital. He was arrested charged with reckless driving.

TILDEN LEADS TENNIS SWEEP IN BRITAIN

Beats Borotra as Miss Ryan, Mrs. Moody Win; All-U. S. Finals in Every Event

WIMBLEDON, England, July 2. — (AP.)—All-American finals for the British tennis championships in both singles and doubles were assured today when the United States forces led by Bill Tilden and Mrs. Helen Wills Moody eliminated the last surviving representatives of other countries.

This remarkable accomplishment was achieved when Tilden defeated his old rival, Jean Borotra, of France, in five spectacular sets, 0-6, 6-4, 4-6, 6-0, 7-5, after Mrs. Moody had beaten Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, 6-3, 6-2, and Elizabeth Ryan, native Californian now living in England, had advanced at the expence of Fraulein Cecilie Aussem, of Germany.

GERMAN STAR FAINTS ..

Miss Ryan won from the little German player only after a desperate battle in which Fraulein Asussem suffered a sprained ankle at 4-all in the critical third set, collapsed, and was forced to retire. Miss Ryan had won the first set at 6-3 and Fraulein Aussem the second at 6-0.

The second semi-final in the men's singles division was an all-American affair with Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., and John Doeg, Santa Monica, Cal., fighting it out.

Tilden played some of the greatest tennis of his career to beat Borotra, who likewise never showed more polished or spectacular play.

GALLERY FOR BOROTRA

Big Bill had to conquer not only his flashing opponent, but also the eccentricities of his own temperament. He faced packed galleries of more than 13,000 who never concealed their partisanship for the Frenchman. The Basque is a great gallery favorite, while Tilden's manner on the court and his questioning of linesmen's decisions set the crowd against him, and feeling increased as the match progressed.

Whenever Morotra won a point, the stands rocked with cheers, and when he deuced the games at 5-5 in the last set, the Wimbledon throng thundered its tribute.

POLICE HOLD GUN BUYER IN WEST

International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 2.—Frank Foster, gun buyer for the George (Bugs) Moran gang, was indicted today as the murderer of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

Foster was seized in Los Angeles with five companions as they tried to escape into Mexico.

Lieut. George Barker, police escort for Jack Zuta and his mob, the target of gangsters last night in a running gun battle on State street, was suspended today by Police Commissioner John Alcock.

A store of ammunition was seized in a raid on the headquarters of the Moran gang.

BYSTANDER KILLED

Disorderly conduct cases against Zuta and his companions were continued to July 5, when none appeared in court today.

These were the developments in the wake of the most spectacular gang uprising since the St. Valentine's massacre of seven Moran gangsters in a Clark street garage.

A motorman killed and a pedestrian wounded, innocently and fatefully placed in the line of fire, were the only casualties in the running gun battle between two automobiles at 10:30 last night, although police expressed a belief some of Zuta's men may have been wounded.

Authorities were convinced that Zuta and his men were to be massacred in an effort to seal their lips in regard to the Lingle slaying. It was feared in gang circles that they already had "talked too much" in regard to the murder of the reporter with the $60,000-a-year income who has been variously termed as "Chicago's unofficial police chief."

The raid on the Moran headquarters was the first official step

500 HRS. PAST, KENNETH TIRES

CHICAGO, July 2.—(AP.)—The urge to give up the refuel-endurance record flight surged strongly in Kenneth Hunter today as he and his brother, John, passed their 500th hour in the air at 1:40 p. m. (Pittsburgh time).

Kenneth is tired. He wants to come down and end the maddening monotony of three weeks ceaseless flying.

DROPS NOTE

Kenneth dropped a note to his brothers at the sky harbor hangar. It was marked "personal" and the refueling crew would not reveal its text, but they said Kenneth thought the flight should end today.

"But John would stay up there forever," said Walter.

The plane, which left New York at 8:05 a. m. today, headed directly for Toledo from here.

Aviation enthusiasts here expressed anxiety for the Southern Cross today when at 10:55 its radio signals being received by Westinghouse station KDKA stopped without a sign-off signal. It was almost two hours later before a definite report was received

20 BANK SHUT IN CONNELLSVILLE

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., July 2.—The Union National bank failed to open its doors today. It is the second bank in Connellsville to close in two days.

The board of directors issued this statement:

"The board of directors of the Union National Bank decided that it would be for the best interest of our depositors and stockholders to place our assets in the custody of the banking department."

The State Department of Banking yesterday closed the Title and Trust Company of Western Pennsylvania, the largest and one of the oldest banks in Connellsville.

State Secretary of Banking Cameron, at Harrisburg, said the bank was taken over by the department after discovery that "frozen assets" were endangering the financial structure of the institution.

Cameron said the department will attempt to interest new capital in the bank in the hope of reopening it and protecting the depositors. L. F. Ruth is president and J. C. Brennan, treasurer.

First Aerial Wedding Here Set for Bettis Field

Pittsburgh's first aerial wedding—5,000 feet in the air in an 18-passenger plane—will be held Sunday afternoon at Bettis Field.

The bride will be a Boston girl, Miss Helen G. MacLeod, and the bridegroom, John R. Bazley, in charge of line service for Curtiss-Wright at Bettis Field.

Officiating at the mile-high ceremony will be the Rev. James S. Jewell, Brookline, Mass., Baptist minister.

There will be nothing crowded about the wedding, the participants say. With a giant Curtiss Condor plane offering plenty of space, and members of the Bazley family will be attendants.

As an added attraction, officials of KDKA are attempting to obtain equipment from Cleveland to broadcast the wedding from the air.

After the wedding, three planes will engage in a 50-mile race. On July 4 afternoon, fliers will bomb a miniature village constructed on Bettis Field and in the evening there will be a fireworks display.

Coolidge Sees Success Won Only by Sacrifice

NORTHAMPTON, July 2.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

This country was not made on the theory that we should "eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die." Its founders were more accustomed to prepare themselves with fasting and prayer that they might meet the serious obligation to live through the morrow. They had their feast days too, for they found a great happiness in their work. But these were times of thanksgiving and praise.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

Instead of falling back and falling down on the claim that the world owed them a living they moved up on the principle that they owed the world the duty of providing for themselves. They sought to live in the things of the spirit. They put first things first. They set small store on the things that are temporal but strove mightily for the things that are eternal.

If this nation is to endure we shall have to continue to walk by their light. We cannot give all our thought to material success. We cannot be relieved of all hardships. We should not faint at the first obstacle. We must accept the lot of finite human beings and with deeper faith and higher courage work out our own salvation through our own sacrifice.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

HOUSE SEEKS COMPROMISE WITH SENATE ON PENSION BILL

CONFERENCE AGREEMENT EXPECTED

Republican Leaders Eager To Rid Calendar of Chief Obstacle to Adjournment

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Republican leaders in the House today indicated their willingness to effect a compromise with the Senate on the World War veterans' pension bill, which is the chief obstacle to early adjournment.

The measure will be sent to conference today under a plan adopted when House leaders met in the office of Speaker Longworth.

"[illegible]ing the measure to conference is a bill," Rep. Tilson, Connecticut, the Republican leader, declared.

Members of the Steering Committee, Republicans on the Rules Committee, and sponsors of veterans legislation were called into the conference by Longworth.

FROWN ON AMENDMENTS

Amendments in the Senate including an increase in the pension rate to a maximum of $60 a month, are unsatisfactory to the House leaders. It is expected, however, a compromise will be formed in the Conference Committee because of the Senate's determined stand for its more liberal bill.

Although it has been reported President Hoover might veto the measure as passed by the Senate, Republican House leaders profess to have no knowledge of the President's attitude on the Senate bill.

Representative Rankin (Dem.), of Mississippi, who is leading the minority in the House pension fight, is expected to ask a vote on acceptance of the Senate amendments.

DELAYS ADJOURNMENT

Controversy over the bill indefinitely postponed adjournment of Congress. Both Republican and Democratic leaders declared Congress would have to remain in session until a World War pension bill is enacted.

The cost of the measure was estimated as averaging $160,000,000 annually for the next five years.

The chief provisions would pay $100 a month compensation to totally permanently disabled veterans, injured in wartime service. If the veteran lost both eyes, the rate would be $150 a month, and if he lost a limb in addition, the maximum rate would be $200 a month.

If disabled in peace time or by his own willful misconduct during the war, the veteran would receive $10 to $60 a month. In serious cases, such as blindness, or paralysis, the veteran would be hospitalized in addition to receiving a pension.

PAYMENTS TO RELATIVES

Other provisions included:

Payment of $20 a month pension to father or mother, $30 to both of deceased veterans.

Extension of one year in time limit for filing of suits under the war insurance act.

Provision authorizing attorney general to settle all such suits out of court, of which 5,100 are pending.

Establishing a presumptive service origin in all cases of active tuberculosis and spinal meningitis, discovered before January 1, 1925.

Removal of the comptroller general's authority over pensions.

It was apparent administration leaders expected a veto of the bill and wished to avoid the roll-call. As it now stands, about 20 administration senators will have to change sides or the Senate will override the veto.

WILEY'S WIDOW GETS ESTATE

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(INS.)—With the exception of a $1,200 trust fund, from which $50 a month goes to the trustees of Christian Church, Kent, Ind., the entire estate of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, for almost 30 years chief scientist for the Department of Agriculture, is willed to his widow. He named her as the executrix and also bequeathed to her all his medals and decorations received for his work in the field of science and for championing the present pure food and drug laws.

The amount of his estate was not announced, but the document provides that upon her death Mrs. Wiley may will the estate to their two sons, their descendants or to Hanover College, Hanover, Ind.

Dr. Wiley died Monday and his funeral was held today from the Vermont Avenue Christian Church. Burial was in Arlington Cemetery.

ASKS HIGHER CURB

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern today proposed raising the curb between the roadway and the sidewalk of county bridges, to a height equal to that of the hubs of the largest motor vehicles. He also favored providing the curbs with setbacks.

Chief Engineer C. M. Reppert declared that the city plans to erect stronger fences and guard-rails and higher curbs of an improved type on the new East Street Bridge now under construction. Reppert said:

"The fence will be much stronger and of an improved design. It will shunt machines back to the highway instead of permitting them to break through."

WORK TO START SOON

Work of installing new fences and higher reinforced curbs on the Boulevard of the Allies, Bigelow boulevard and Mansfield avenue will be started without delay, Reppert said. Council yesterday approved an ordinance setting aside $50,000 for the purpose.

Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the Better Traffic Committee, pointed out in a letter to Council that a curb protects pedestrians as well as motorists. He suggested for the Boulevard of the Allies a 12-inch curb to be built on top of the present eight-inch one.

Doubt as to whether the railing on the Liberty Bridge was built according to specifications was expressed by McGovern today. He said he intends to have the matter investigated. Before the contract for the railing was let, McGovern insisted on tests that tended to show that the railing would withstand an ordinary impact.

TORE OUT 20 FEET

A car last Sunday tore out about 20 feet of railing from the up-stream side of the bridge, although it escaped plunging into the river.

Shadeland Avenue Bridge, North Side, was opened to traffic yesterday after being closed for several months while new flooring was put in. High concrete curbs were installed at the same time.

A resolution calling upon police to enforce strictly the regulations against reckless driving was passed unanimously by Council yesterday. The resolution asked particularly for a drive against driving while under the influence of liquor.

PRODUCE HERE SAFEGUARDED

Pittsburgh's fruit and produce buyers are safe from the sale of unfit merchandise, according to J. J. Gardner of the United States Department of Agriculture in this district.

Federal supervision of incoming produce has been maintained since 1917, according to Gardner. Wholesale buyers of produce, who question the quality of merchandise purchased, may have their cars inspected by federal experts. The status of the contents is evaluated and all disputes settled.

Pittsburgh is one of the four largest terminal produce markets in the United States, according to Gardner. Of the 29,279 cars unloaded here over 50 per cent were from California, Florida, New York and Virginia, Gardner said.

Confectioner Fined $100 on Dry Charge

TREATY DELAY SEEN IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Action on the London naval treaty must be postponed until after the November elections, unless the pact can be jammed through the Senate in a week, it was believed here today.

This was conceded by Senator Borah, of Idaho, who, as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, is in charge of the fight for ratification of the treaty.

During a discussion yesterday of the prospect for action on the treaty, Borah was asked if he thought the special session of the Senate would last a month.

He replied:

"No. Unless we can ratify the treaty within a week we won't be able to hold a quorum of the Senate in Washington."

There will be no filibuster on the part of the treaty foes, both Senator Johnson, of California, and Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, two of the leading opponents of the pact, have declared they will frown on any discussion that does not throw light on the treaty.

Wailing Wall Jews' Most Sacred Spot

JERUSALEM, July 2.—(AP.)—Prof. Shatz, director and founder of the Bezalel Art Institute, testifying before the Wailing Wall commission today, said that the wall still was the most sacred of spots to Jews "whether or not it be proved archeologically authentic." The long-continued lamentations which have been poured forth at the wailing wall, he averred, had endeared it to all Jews just as the Holy Sepulcher was sacred to all Christians.

HOUSE TO FIGHT FOR INCREASED DRY QUIZ FUND

Rules Ignored in Battle To Increase $50,000 for Wickersham to $250,000

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The House prepared again to battle today with the Senate in behalf of the Hoover administration by raising the $50,000 voted by the Senate for the Wickersham Crime Commission to $250,000 and removing the Senate's limitation to a study of prohibition enforcement.

Extraordinary efforts were adopted by Republican leaders of the House, through its Rules Committee, to prevent defeat of their plan through technical objections.

With some doubt raised as to the legality of the House's action in attempting to raise the $50,000 beyond the amount in dispute, the Rules Committee reported a resolution setting aside the rules to permit consideration of the $250,000 fund.

RULES IGNORED

The usual limitation against consideration of such measures without advance notice also was set aside in a resolution of the Rules Committee. Representative Wood (Rep.), of Indiana, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, planned to press for action today in consideration of the conference report of the second deficiency bill.

The Wickersham Commission was still functioning, having been promised funds by President Hoover through private subscription if Congress turns him down, but was legally out of existence. Its authority expired at midnight June 30.

PASS PATROL BILL

The administration's border patrol bill was sent to the Senate by the House, the measure having been passed as proposed by administration leaders.

With its passage, the House completed favorable action on all of the major measures asked by Hoover to make prohibition enforcement more effective.

The Senate had before it the favorable report of its Judiciary Committee on the "juryless trial" and Jones "five and ten" law modification bills, with drys planning to seek passage before adjournment. These measures are the keystone of the program recommended by the Wickersham commission to reduce congestion in federal courts.

Senate anti-drys were ready to filibuster against them to prevent passage.

REPRISAL SEEN IN ITALY'S TAX

DETROIT, July 2.—(AP.)—Leaders in the automobile industry here generally accepted the announcement of the increased Italian tariff on motor cars as fulfillment of forecasts made during the discussion of the Hawley-Smoot bill.

Alvin Macauley, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, while declining to discuss the probable effect on the industry, said that Italy is "not one of the biggest markets by any means," but that the increased tariff might encourage other countries to follow.

He recalled that the recent American tariff measure had been adopted in the face of foreign protests.

GERMANY COLD TO 'TRIAL' FOR EX-KAISER

Too Late to Do Any Good, Leaders Agree; Consider It 'Wilhelmesque Gesture'

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service.

BERLIN, July 2.—The offer by ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany to let an international court-martial determine his personal responsibility for the sequence of events which led up to the World War, coming in the midst of the great national celebrations over liberation of the Rhineland, met with little sympathy among political and military leaders here today.

Most of the distinguished group interviewed by International News Service expressed downright opposition to the proposal as a futile and "typically Wilhelmesque" gesture. Virtually all agreed that the proposed international trial would be of no benefit whatever to Germany.

REPORTED BY BIGELOW

News of the ex-Kaiser's desire to stand trial was brought to New York by Poultney Bigelow, American historian and publicist, on his return from Doorn, Holland, where he had visited Wilhelm in exile.

Berlin generally feels that it is too late for the court-martial to do any good. The ex-Kaiser rejected the proposal when urged upon him repeatedly by his generals and friends before the Dawes and Young plans were put into operation and now, through his long quiescence, the former sovereign has eliminated himself from Germany's life while events have rolled far beyond him.

EX-CROWN PRINCE SILENT

The former crown prince, who usually opposes his father in questions of policy and Gen. Von Mackensen, his staunchest defender, refused to comment on the plan. Gen. Erich von Ludendorff, Von Hindenburg's right-hand man in the war, contented himself with saying it was a matter for the ex-Kaiser himself to decide.

LOTTERY RAIDS SNARE 9

While returning to the police station with four lottery suspects, South Side officers took into custody four others writing "numbers" in automobiles, they reported. A ninth suspect was arrested when he appeared to give bail for two others.

A squad of plainclothesmen raided an alleged lottery headquarters at 12 South Twenty-seventh street, and reported seizing four adding machines and lottery books.

They arrested Jack Goldstein, 268 Lombard street; George Bunn, 2710 Sarah street; William Cleveland, Negro, 2518 Carson street, and Harry Morgan, 24 Vine street.

On their way back they arrested D. T. Blair, 1304 Fernleaf street, and A. F. Fornedlur, 2214 Carson street, in an automobile at South Twenty-second and Carson streets.

Then they picked up Ernest Weiland, 102 South Twenty-first street; and Stanley Bonert, 2518 Lebanon street, in a machine at South Twenty-first street and Carey way.

When Thomas J. (Goose) Goslin, 1615 Brownsville road, appeared to give bail for Goldstein and Morgan, he was arrested as the alleged proprietor of the lottery. He gave bond for release of himself and the two others.

All will be given hearings tomorrow in South Side Police Court on charges of operating lotteries.

SENATOR SMOOT WEDS WIDOW

SALT LAKE CITY, July 2.—(AP.)—Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, and Mrs. Alice Taylor Sheets were married here today in the Latter Day Saints temple. Heber J. Grant, president of that church, performed the ceremony.

The Senator and his second wife emerged from the temple shortly before 10 o'clock, the ceremony requiring approximately two hours. She wore a white crepe gown and coat, with accessories to match and carried a corsage of roses and lilies of the valley. The Senator was dressed informally.

They went to Provo, Utah, where Mr. Smoot has lived for several years. No wedding reception will be held. About the middle of July, they will go to San Francisco and sail July 19 for a honeymoon in Honolulu.

Their engagement had been announced here Monday by Mr. Smoot, following his return from Washington. His first wife died a year ago. Mrs. Sheets had been a widow since 1918.

RAIDERS FIND BULLETS

State's attorney forces raided the hotel rooms of Grover Dullard, employe of gambling houses operated, it is charged, by the Moran gang in conjunction with Zuta. In the rooms the detectives found six boxes of .45-caliber steel-jacketed bullets and gambling paraphanalia.

Meanwhile Lieut. Barker, veteran detective, declared he could identify positively one of the gunmen in the car that "cut in" and started firing on his automobile as he was taking Zuta and his three companions, one of them a woman, through the loop.

"I could pick him out in a million," he asserted.

M'KEESPORT RAID BARES RUM RING

$50,000 Seizure Implicates Pittsburghers Among 11 Just Indicted in Cleveland

Seizure of whisky worth $50,000 in McKeesport last month was believed today the direct cause of uncovering an alleged international rum ring operating from Florida, Canada with McKeesport one of the principal distributing centers.

Eleven men, four from Pittsburgh and McKeesport, were named in a secret indictment handed down at Cleveland yesterday. They are charged with conspiracy. The alleged rum-running syndicate is said to have operated overland from Florida by truck to McKeesport and to Cleveland from boats across the lake.

Dan F. Coughlin, of McKeesport, arrested May 31 when Federal agents say he had just signed a way bill for a $50,000 shipment of 8,022 quarts of whisky, was named as one of the leaders in the syndicate. The whisky had been shipped as fertilizer. Coughlin, taken into court, pleaded not guilty and was released on $7,500 bond.

YARDMASTER NAMED

Patrick J. Burns, yardmaster for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at McKeesport, John Dolan and James Courtney, also of McKeesport, are listed in the indictment and are being sought by Federal agents. Others are Glen Fisher, alias Carrots, Harry Fisher, John J. O'Boyle, A. Arlis, M. Doty, Pater Buchholz and Harry Goodman, alias Gordon. The Fishers were arraigned, along with Coughlin, and pleaded not guilty.

The indictment charges that the syndicate operated through Pennsylvania and Ohio from June 1, 1929, until June 16, 1930. It is charged that the liquor was shipped by rail from Fernandia, Fla., and Ontario, Can., to McKeesport and there re-shipped by truck to Pittsburgh, Woodlawn, Chicago and other points. The Cleveland interests were receiving shipments by boat from Canada. Three boats were constantly in operation between Kingsville, Can., and Cleveland, it was said.

With Coughlin, Courtney and O'Boyle were named as leaders of the ring. Coughlin working in McKeesport, O'Boyle in Cleveland and Courtney in Canada. The specific charge to which Coughlin pleaded not guilty was transporting the 8,022 quarts of whisky to McKeesport from Cleveland. The shipment was addressed to E. Hubbard, care of the McKeesport Banana Distributing Company. Coughlin was arrested in McKeesport a short time after signing for the shipment.

Harry and Glenn Fisher are charged with operating a Cleveland garage for the rum trucks; Burns, the McKeesport yardmaster, with aiding in receiving shipments of liquor. Dolan, Arlis and Doty are said to have been shippers and transporters of the liquor from Florida; Buchholz is alleged to have operated a motor boat to deliver Canadian goods. Goodman or Gordon is said to have cared for the delivery end in Cleveland.

FACES ANOTHER CHARGE

Coughlin also faces arraignment today on another charge, transporting 33 cases of champagne from Sandusky to Vermilion, O., with Courtney. Besides, he is at liberty under $10,000 bond pending appeal from his recent conviction on a conspiracy charge at Toledo. He faces a conspiracy charge in the local Federal District Court for his arrest in McKeesport.

The conviction on the conspiracy charge was with "Handsome Larry" Davidson, former head of the syndicate, now in the Atlanta Penitentiary. Courtney skipped bond and fled to Canada, last November, after being arrested in Cleveland. The charges against him are based mostly on telephone conversations from Windsor, Kingsville and Port Lemington, Ont., with Cleveland alleged members of the ring.

Government investigators advance the theory that the supplies for the Florida base were obtained from the Bahamas, Bimini and Cuba.

Dry Agents Go to School; Find Moist Curriculum

READING, Pa., July 2.—(AP.)—John G. Ward and Edward M. Smith, two employes of Uncle Sam, went to school at Birdsboro to take an inventory of the educational and other equipment in the old building.

Instead of school books, slates and blackboards, they found a pool tables and card tables, teen half barrels of beer, 4 cent grade, and other things often found in school houses. Fry, said to have been the "school master," and Joseph Burke, a member of the "faculty," were served with "diplomas" inviting them to appear before the United States commissioner to receive additional "degrees."

Two more calls were made in the town. At Elmer Painter's house the dry agents found a milkless milk pitcher. They said the contents looked like whisky. Painter furnished bond.

The St. Elmo Hotel was raided but no liquor found.

FEARED LOSING MIND, DIARY REVEALS

PARIS, July 2. (AP.)—Balked by a poison which did not kill, Midshipman Francis H. Worthington, 19, of Grover, Col., chose a soldier's weapon, his gun, with which to die.

He inflicted wounds which resulted in his death at a hospital here. After legal formalities are completed the body will be sent home.

In his room was a weird diary in which he explained his suicide as a consequence of his belief life no longer was worth living and that he was haunted by the idea his mind was likely to give way.

ANNOYED BY RESULT

It told of his taking poison then recorded his annoyance when drug failed to work. Meanwhile, he gulped cognac to bolster his spirits. He became unconscious and upon awakening made the last entry, saying he was disgusted over not being dead. He then resorted to his gun.

He left no communication for his family. Worthington was in Paris with a party of Annapolis cadets.

Among the papers in his room was a farewell letter to Admiral Gluverius, in command of the tour. Both it and the diary will be forwarded to Washington.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED

The tragedy occurred in such an obscure and undesirable section of Paris rarely frequented by Americans and probably known to only a few of them that police at first suspected foul play.

As they directed their investigation in that direction they came upon the diary. This excluded the murder theory, once its authenticity had been established.

SERVICE BOARD HEARS MANY PROTESTS

New Company Applies for Permit for Cab Line; Time Extended to Sept. 24

Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company fares and service in Bellevue and West View were attacked today at a hearing before Public Service Commissioner Charles Young in the City-County Building.

The Peoples Royal Blue Taxicab Company appeared before the commission today asking a certificate of convenience that would let it operate 4 0 taxis in Pittsburgh. George E. Wortman said a contract for the cabs had been signed with General Motors, but denied that company has a financial interest in the venture.

HELD EXCESSIVE

George A. Young, Woods Run president of the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade, termed the 25-cent bus fare "excessive" and the service "insufficient." John M. Rice, transportation expert, also declared the service inadequate.

The motor bus hearing turned into bitter complaints against street car service. The hearing was continued by Commissioner Young until September 24, to give time for engineers representing the commission, the Philadelphia Company and the complainants to make recommendations to the commission.

TROLLEY SERVICE SCORED

W. E. Armstrong, real estate dealer of Baldwin Township; Harry Bastow, court reporter, of Crafton Heights, and Norman T. Bish, instructor in Westinghouse High School, declared the street car service was very inadequate.

Governor Conley quoted the resolution of the Institutional Labor Conference which requested him to urge the governors of the states not represented in the Eastern-Southern Conference or in a similar New England organization to initiate in their states similar organizations in an endeavor to secure uniform action.

Rum Possession Held Legal by Raid Victim

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP.)—The contention that possession of liquor in itself is not unlawful was argued before a United States commissioner here on behalf of a patron arrested in a night club raid.

Frederic R. Coudert, Sr., prominent attorney, appearing for Raymond Ackerman, pointed out that the United States Supreme Court recently held that the purchase of intoxicating liquor is not unlawful, adding:

"To tell a man that he may lawfully purchase liquor, but that once having obtained the possession of it he is committing a crime by such possession, is to turn the law into one of those ridiculous farces which would have been so admirably exploited by Gilbert and Sullivan and to which Will Rogers makes such pertinent allusions."

SPAIN TO ADOPT GOLD STANDARD

MADRID, July 2.—(AP.)—Launching an intensive financial campaign to stabilize the slipping peseta, the cabinet of Premier Damaso Berenguer has decided that Spain will return to the gold standard.

Stabilization will be achieved in three stages. The first, which was begun last night, concerns the unification of the budget and the balancing of revenue and expenditures on a definite basis.

The second stage will provide for transitional measures and the third and last will bring back the old standard.

The government is considered in some quarters to be marking time by postponing the adoption of the gold standard with the purpose of obtaining a rate for the peseta as high as possible. It may wait until the Cortes or parliament is convened after elections some time in November or December.

MANIAC HUNTED AFTER ATTACK

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 2.—Search was continued here today for a maniac, suspected of having beaten a Mt. Pleasant Township youth into insensibility, and of being the person who has been terrorizing farmers throughout the township.

The youth, Clyde Cowdon, 17, who surprised the man in the barn in his grandfather's farm, was recovering from the effects of having been struck on the head by a sand bag, physicians said.

State police and other authorities searching for the man said they have received numerous reports of his activities on farms near the Cowdon place. He has also ransacked the home of Herman Engle, adjoining the Cowdon property.

Police said descriptions of the man and his activities dovetail with those of a character known throughout the countryside as Box Car Joe. According to reports the man has been stealing milk and turning cattle out of fields in which they were grazing.

MAKING MONEY FAST

Actual profits to the fliers and their backers at 1:40 p. m. Pittsburgh time amounted to $9,029, not including the commission they will receive from gate receipts at Nas Harbor. No estimate has been made on the latter.

Of nearly $10,000 earned, $7,900 is from an oil company, which is donating the fuel for the flight. The company is giving the fliers $100 an hour for every hour over the previous world's record, with a limit of $10,000.

The Columbia Broadcasting System last night at 5 o'clock began paying the fliers $1 a minute, and that at 11:40 o'clock amounted to $1,129.

At 3:40 p. m. today, if all continues well the fliers will have completed three weeks in the air.

"DON'T WORRY"

John today dropped a note to be telegraphed to his sister, Miss Mabelle Hunter, who is ill in a hospital. It was an answer to her message delivered by radio through her mother yesterday, in which she expressed worry over their speech and health.

The note read:

"What do you say 'Boy' Mabelle's nickname)? Who don't know how to break a record" Well, we have clone 500 hours and the motor is running fairly good yet. I don't know how much longer it will last. Beans (Kenneth) is fretting and wants to come down at 520 hours, but I want to stay up 'till Monday.

"It has been tough, but nothing like the other flight. We are feeling fine, although Beans is getting pretty sleepy.

"We go out and work on that old motor as if it were on the ground (bolones). But I did go out on the catwalk this morning at 7 o'clock and put a new breaker in the magneto.

"Now don't go worrying about us because we are all right. We can still talk and to prove it, we will all come down and make a big speech for you."

The fliers yesterday broadcast through a radio microphone what it feels like to stay away from the earth 20 days.

Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine, endurance fliers who formerly held the record, flew over the City of Chicago last evening in the St. Louis Robin and dropped a wreath of flowers and a congratulatory note to the new champions.

Washington Move Sounds Radio Squawk Knell

The raucous and sleep-menacing radio seems due for a fall.

It has been learned by the Pittsburgh Housing Association from the Housing Committee of Washington, D. C., Council of Social Agencies that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia have adopted a new regulation designed to curb the squawks.

The local housing association sees a heavy local interest in the Washington move.

The regulation reads in part:

"That it shall be unlawful for any person or company to use or operate any mechanical device for the intensification of the human voice or any sound in any public or private place in such a manner that the peace of the neighborhood is disturbed."

The penalty for violation is a general fine not to exceed $ jail term not to exceed 30

NO VILLAGE COP, PENNINGTON DECLARES

Chief, Assuming Post in East, Says Enforcement Will Be on Sane Lines

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—(AP.)—Lieut. Com. John D. Pennington, taking charge of the Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware area as prohibition administrator under the new order of things, said that he did not believe that Congress in passing the prohibition act intended that federal officers should be the "village cops."

Commander Pennington, who had charge of the Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia district, said that prohibition is a difficult problem. He said:

"It calls for the most intelligent and courageous leadership. It is my intention to so conduct my office that it will merit the good will and support of all good citizens. My work will always be along sane, honest and lawful lines. No publicity will be sought and no sensational methods employed."

SUCCEEDS WYNNE

Commander Pennington succeeds Col. Samuel G. Wynne who has been appointed supervisor of alcohol permits under the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol for the Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware district.

The new dry chief in taking office refused to state what he expects to do saying he preferred to "let actions speak rather than words." Public search of individuals for bottles and similar methods, he indicated, would not be employed.

SEEKS CO-OPERATION

"The closest spirit of co-operation between the Federal, state and local authorities will be sought and encouraged," he said. "I believe that the prohibition laws, to be enforced successfully, must be enforced by the judicial machinery of the states and municipalities. We do not need additional laws, additional district attorneys or prohibition administrators. We need honest administration and honest officers."

It is high time that this time-worn law, impossible of enforcement and violated everywhere with impunity, should be shaped to the will of the majority. READY TO MEET

Little is chairman of the special committee of Council including Councilmen C. B. Connelley and Michael J. Muldowney, appointed by President John S. Herron to study legislation for amending the Blue Laws and gather the sentiment of the people of Pittsburgh. Little said his committee would be glad to meet and co-operate with the Council of Philadelphia, in response to the invitation issued yesterday by that body, as soon as arrangements could be made. Muldowney is also a former member of the Legislature.

Little has been in communication with Representative Michael A. Musmanno who has prepared a "local option" amendment of the Blue Law to be presented at the next session.

BOROUGHS FOR REPEAL

Two additional boroughs, North Braddock and Pitcairn, filing substantial returns in the Blue Law poll of Allegheny County by the Sun-Telegraph, voice a pronounced sentiment against the closed Sunday. North Braddock voters favor repeal of the law by a ratio of 6 to 1 over advocates of enforcement and Pitcairn voters give a ratio of 3 to 1. Their totals are:

	North Braddock	Pitcairn
Enforcement	61	97
Modification	36	31
Repeal	372	210

The poll to date in these boroughs totals 782 ballots, or 29 per cent of the total vote in both of 2,708, at the May primary.

The latest tabulation of the county poll shows 58,767 ballots, giving a ratio of five votes for repeal to one for enforcement. The divisions are:

	Men	Women	Total
Enforcement	5,140	4,015	9,155
Modification	2,936	1,635	4,571
Repeal	31,181	31,660	45,041

Poll results to date in 10 of the smaller boroughs and 10 of the smaller townships will be published tomorrow. They are the boroughs of Cheswick, Haysville, Heidelberg, Liberty, Osborne, Port Vue, Rosslyn Farms, Thornburg, Versailles and Wall and the townships of Crescent, Fawn, Kennedy, Kilbuck, Leet, Lincoln, Marshall, Moon, McCandless and Neville.

BLAST AT DRYS BY CAMPBELL SPURS QUIZ

(Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Maj. Maurice Campbell's blast against prohibition enforcement in New York may culminate in a sweeping congressional investigation it was believed today.

Representative Celler (Dem.) of New York has introduced the resolution for the probe, declaring that it would reveal a national scandal.

He charged Campbell had been forced to resign because he raided the exclusive Ritz-Carlton Hotel and the Central Park Casino.

The resolution declared that Campbell resigned rather than accept a transfer to Boston in a lesser job.

RENEW QUIZ DEMAND

At the same time it appeared likely that Campbell's charges would lead to a renewed demand for action on the Wheeler-Norris prohibition investigation resolution in the Senate.

Campbell in quitting his job as prohibition administrator of New York declared:

"There are certain brewery permits, whisky permits and alcohol permits that local politicians and certain administrative officials in Washington feel must be restored in order to secure necessary support for the Republican ticket in New York this fall."

He added that Treasury officials knew that if he was in office these permits for political patronage would not be granted.

"Sorehead."

That was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman's comment in regard to Campbell's charges.

It might be summed up as the Treasury's attitude toward the Campbell broadside.

Lowman said Campbell was disgruntled because he didn't land the job he wanted.

The Celler resolution said the Federal grand jury in New York City had delivered a presentment charging laxity and malfeasance in the office of Campbell.

Slanders against Jews and Italians were charged to Frank J. Loesch of Chicago, member of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission, by Representative Celler.

He attacked the statement attributed to Loesch that the first generation of Jews and Italians are the chief offenders in gangster activities in this country.

While the Jews and Italians furnish their proportion of criminals, all other nationalities also have a similar proportion of ne'er-do-wells, Celler said.

In a letter to Loesch Celler told him that he displayed a prejudice which disqualified him as a member of the commission.

FAILING EXPERIMENT

TOLEDO, July 2.—(Universal.)—"I see no way in which prohibition can be enforced."

That was the statement of William H. O'Neill, who has resigned as prohibition administrator of the Northwestern Ohio district.

Declaring that prohibition was a "failing experiment," Mr. O'Neill added:

"A prohibition agent's life is a dog's life. The hours are terrible and the pay is poor. On the basis of hours an agent works, his salary is less than 30 cents an hour."

ZIONISTS WELD FACTIONS IN NEW REGIME

Brandies, Lipsky and Wise Share in Control Voted As Cleveland Meet Ends

CLEVELAND, July 2.—(AP.)—American Zionists, divided into factions by a split in their organization in 1921, ended their differences at the closing session of the thirty-third annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America and elected an administration representing the present and preceding administrations.

An administrative committee of 18 was named to succeed the present directing heads, of whom Louis Lipsky had been president for nine years since retirement of Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis upon defeat of his policies. Lipsky submitted his resignation at the start of this convention.

Supporters of Justice Brandeis and Judge Julian W. Mack leaders in the previous administration, are in the ascendancy in the new leadership, having 12 representatives on the administrative committee against six from the present administration forces.

40 IN EXECUTIVE GROUP

In addition to the committee of 18, the organization's controlling body will consist of an executive committee of 40 and a national advisory council of 150.

Among the "big 18" is Rabbi Stephen A. Wise, New York, who issued a statement in New York concurrent with the opening of the convention, charging the organization was "morally and politically bankrupt." The retiring president, Lipsky, is among the holdovers from the administration which won out over Brandeis nine years ago.

Other members of the administrative committee are Judge Mack, Jacob De Haas, Abraham Goldberg, Emanuel Newmann, Dr. Nathan Kaplan, Samuel J. Rosensohn, Morris Rothenberg, Nelson Ruttenberg, Robert Szold, Mrs. Edward Jacobs and Abraham Tulin, all of New York; Israel Brodie, Baltimore; Rabbi James G. Heller, Cincinnati; Judge William M. Lewis, Philadelphia; Rabbi Louis I. Newman, San Francisco, and Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, Cleveland.

LIPSKY PRAISED

A resolution was adopted acclaiming Lipsky as an inspiration not only to the rank and file of workers in the Zionist cause but to the leaders themselves.

The reorganization provided that the executive committee of 40 shall be divided equally between the Brandeis-Mack and Lipsky groups.

It was decided the next convention shall be held about December, 1931, unless the administration shall call one sooner.

3 BISHOPS AT M. E. PARLEY

Joint discussion of the proposed union of the Methodist Episcopal Church North and the Methodist Protestant Church was being held today by special commissions of both denominations at the William Penn Hotel.

Three bishops were in attendance, with Bishop W. F. McDowell, of Washington, presiding at the request of the Rev. Dr. J. C. Broomfield, of Pittsburgh, president of the Methodist Protestant general conference. Attending with the Methodist Episcopal commission of union of Methodists with Bishop McDowell were Bishop F. D. Leete, of Omaha, and Bishop Herbert Welch, of Pittsburgh.

Chief discussion between the groups was centered on the details of the pension fund for ministers, financial and property rights and lay representation.

STAY GRANTED IN EXTRADITION

Armed with extradition papers, Deputy Sheriff William H. Harris of Pulaski County, Arkansas, had George Partin, wanted in Little Rock, Ark., for an alleged attempt to bribe a state Senator, at the Pennsylvania station.

But then Attorney Ralph P. Tannehill appeared with a writ of stay. The deputy sheriff was invited to unhand his prisoner. He refused. Tannehill thereupon shoved Partin against the wall and placed himself between Partin and Harris.

Final hearing on whether Partin has to go back to Little Rock will be at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Judge Samuel H. Gardner decided in Common Pleas Court today. Bond for Partin was set at $5,000.

'NEWSIE' TURNS RUM SLEUTH

"Want to make half a dollar?"

A prosperous looking stranger was speaking to Roy Feathers, 13, of 212 North Highland avenue, a newsboy. Roy was willing and was given a package to deliver to an address in the 300 block on South Negley avenue.

Roy, though, took the package to No. 6 Police Station, and there it was found to contain one pint of moonshine and a note apologizing for the fact there wasn't more.

And so this morning in East End Police Court Henry Reynolds, 53, of 128 Whitfield street was fined $50 unless he prefers to spend the next 60 days in the workhouse.

JURORS IGNORE SUNDAY SHOWS

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 2.—Another special grand jury is to be summoned here to hear the evidence against theater employes who were arrested Sunday for operating their theaters in violation of the Sunday blue laws. A special grand jury that had been assembled to hear the evidence yesterday was discharged with a severe verbal lashing by Judge J. S. Paisley for failure to return indictments against the defendants.

An attempt of counsel for the theater interests to place before the grand jury the 110 affidavits filed in Municipal Court against other places of business open last Sunday, and on which Mayor Oliver Conley had refused warrants, failed. The jury acted only on the cases of William Hendricks, George Delis, local theater managers, and their four assistants.

Hugh F. Chestosky, attorney for the defendants, said he would insist in placing the affidavits before the new grand jury. It has not yet been decided when the new grand jury will be called.

Repeal Dry Law to Save Young, School Head Asks

DETROIT, Mich., July 2.—(Universal.)—In his inaugural address, Dr. Burt R. Shurly, newly elected president of the Board of Education, demands repeal of the Volstead act "for the benefit of our children." He declared:

"Prohibition is making snoopers and snakes of our young. It must not only be repealed, but repealed speedily to save them from serious harm."

Accepting the presidency, Dr. Shurly said:

"There are two important problems facing this city and this board. One is immediate repeal of the Volstead act. The other is establishment of supervised schools for delinquent children.

"I believe the Eighteenth amendment, which I originally favored, was a sad mistake. We can blame it for 'blind pigs' opposite schools.

"Beer and wines should be distributed through government quartermasters to those of voting age who can read and write. By this means we will teach our children to observe the laws rather than to break them."

Dr. Shurly is one of Detroit's best known physicians.

TARIFF TO AID AGRICULTURE, SAYS HYDE

New Duties Add to Protection Of U. S. Farmer, He Says, Especially Along Border

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 2. The new tariff bill will serve to hold the home market for the American producer and add to the economic urge to agriculture to balance its production against the market demand, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde declared today in a radio address.

"For agriculture the tariff act of 1930 will be a distinct gain," he said. "Actually and potentially it increases tariff protection for American farmers. Many of its rates, such as those on wool, long staple cotton and dairy products will be generally beneficial. Others will be of maximum assistance in border markets and under favorable market conditions.

"The new act reduces, even though it may not entirely eliminate, the disparity in tariff protection which has heretofore existed between agricultural products and industrial products."

"It now lies in the power of agriculture to take the final step toward achieving economic equality."

OPINION DIFFERS

ADRIAN, Mich., July 2 (AP). The phosphorous made for agriculture in the recently enacted Hawley-Smoot tariff bill were attacked here last night by Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, in an address to members of the Lenawee County Grange.

"Those who believe the recently enacted tariff law will bring rural prosperity are due for a grievous disappointment", Taber said.

"It is true some sections, like Michigan for example, have received agricultural tariff increases of value, but the farming industry as a whole will not be benefitted because the increases given industry will offset the advantages given agriculture".

Wanted Dinner, Shave Before Quitting Jail

George Washington, Negro of Conklin street, protested when Judge S. J. McKim, in County Court, signed an order releasing him from jail, where he had been confined since Saturday on a non-support charge preferred by his wife.

The Negro said:

"Judge, I've been working over in jail and there is a dinner, a hair cut and shave coming to me. Can't you send me back until I can collect?"

Judge McKim heeded the plea and sent the Negro with a deputy sheriff back to jail. However, Warden John McNeil refused to admit him. The Negro is required to pay his wife $7 a week under the order.

ADDING to Milady's beauty has become one of the nation's major industries. Today there are salons and parlors where expert hands tend to the setting of Madame's coiffure, where agile fingers knead Madame's face in an invigorating massage, where scientific preparations renew the beauty of the hungry skin. It is all-important that you seek out the more reliable of these shops. That you entrust your greatest asset—beauty—to experienced hands. Thus, we suggest that you patronize those establishments who advertise in the Sun-Telegraph. Their reputation is solid. They are the masters of their profession. So that you may easily use their messages as a guide, we have grouped them every Sunday in the Society Section of the Sun-Telegraph. In these masseurs, barbers and beauticians you may place the utmost confidence. They are Sun-Telegraph advertisers, and are endorsed by the Sun-Telegraph.

2 NEW JERSEY PARTIES VOTE ANTI-DRY

Prohibition Eliminated as State Issue, Democrats To Fight Naval Treaty

TRENTON, N. J., July 2.—(AP.)—The Republican and Democratic parties in New Jersey, for the first time since prohibition became operative, were in accord today in advocating repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Ratification by both state conventions of tentative platforms favoring repeal of the amendment virtually eliminated prohibition as a major issue in the senatorial campaign between Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Republican, and Alexander Simpson, Democrat.

The Republicans followed the leadership of Ambassador Morrow, supporting his repeal stand and going on record as favoring return of liquor control to the states. The Democrats reiterated their plea for repeal.

In telegram to the Democratic convention, which unanimously approved its tentative program without debate, Simpson urged opposition to ratification of the London naval pact. Accordingly, the convention went on record as opposed to the treaty unless confidential correspondence between the United States and Great Britain is disclosed.

POISON DEATH CHARGED TO 2

WELCH, W. Va., July 2.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. John H. Greer, of Coalwood, were held in McDowell County Jail following the death of Mrs. Jassie Walker, also of Coalwood. They were arrested upon complaint of her husband, Sam Walker, who charged they administered poison to his wife in home brew.

Magistrate Samuel Crider, Welch, who issued the warrant in the case, said a death certificate had been signed by a doctor giving poisoning as the cause of Mrs. Walker's death.

Crider said Walker came to his office some hours after the woman's death and swore to a warrant, claiming his wife became ill Sunday night shortly after drinking home brew which he said was given to her by the Greers.

The magistrate said Walker claimed there had been ill feeling between Mrs. Walker and the Greer family.

Squires, Constables Of W. Va. Organize

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 2.—(AP.)—A permanent organization of justices of the peace and constables, which probably will be known as the West Virginia Justices and Constables Association, was organized here with John H. Davis, Huntington magistrate, as president. Other officers named were Charles E. [illegible] Nabb, Wheeling constable, vice president; Mrs. Roxa Lamb, Morgantown magistrate, secretary, and W. C. Clipp, justice of the peace at Charles Town, Jefferson County, treasurer.

NEW NARCOTICS BUREAU HITS TOP SPEED

U. S. Enforcement Agencies Merged Without Hitch In Treasury Department

By KENNETH CLARK.
Universal Service.

The consolidation of the various federal narcotic enforcement agencies into an independent bureau in the Treasury Department as provided in the Porter bill sponsored by the Hearst newspapers was made without hitch yesterday.

Harry J. Anslinger appointed as acting commissioner of narcotics plunged into his work with a sweeping order to all agents to concentrate on smashing the gigantic dope rings which annually flood the United States with millions of dollars worth of illicit drugs. He said:

"We will devote our major efforts to break up the illicit interstate and international traffic in narcotic drugs.

"That's the most important problem facing the government.

"We are asking the states to take over the detection and prosecution of minor offenses. The cases against addicts and one-grain peddlers should be handled in state courts.

RELIEVE COURTS

"This system will relieve the badly congested federal prisons and reduce the dockets of the federal courts."

Approximately one-third of the federal prisoners today are narcotic offenders. So grave has the overcrowding become that the government was forced to transfer some of the prisoner-addicts to the disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

In fighting the rings Anslinger has enlisted the active co-operation of the Customs Bureau and the State Department. A drive is being directed against all ships incoming from Turkey. Secret reports have reached the United States that factories in Turkey are turning out enormous supplies of drugs that smack the illicit traffic.

CANADA TO AID

Anslinger has conferred with Canadian officers who have pledged to co-operate with the United States in building up a wall at the ports and borders against the influx of dope from Europe and the Orient.

Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, today will call up his bill to deport aliens who violate the narcotic laws.

Fish has urged President Hoover to send an American delegation to the League of Nations conference on limitation of narcotics manufacture, in Geneva next December. The League has invited the United States and 13 other manufacturing countries.

The program does not include limitation of the production of opium, which the late Representative Porter (Rep.), of Pa., declared is the only successful method of solving the international dope evil.

TAX COLLECTOR HELD IN FRAUD

SCRANTON, Pa., July 2 (AP).—John O'Connor, who served for nearly 30 years as tax collector of taxes in Olyphant borough, was held under $5,000 bail when arraigned on charges of embezzlement, false pretense and perjury.

It is charged by John Kuzman, burgess of Olyphant, that O'Connor collected thousands of dollars [illegible] from hundreds of persons in Olyphant and from other persons who were not residents of the borough. The collections, it is alleged, were made from persons who were assessed as residents of the borough.

Lawyers representing several companies appeared at the hearing and it was intimated that they may institute proceedings against O'Connor because of testimony showing he had furnished with lists of the companies employees from whom he is alleged to have collected taxes illegally.

Stop Infection Before It Spreads

Burns at your feet tonight and especially tomorrow and between times.

The United States Public Health Service asserts in a recent bulletin that at least one half of all adults suffer from it—men, more than women.

And bear in mind it is no disease to trifle with, for many of its victims have been disabled for weeks.

SYMPTOMS: The germ that causes all this misery and distress usually attacks the toes—underneath and between—with an intense itching, burning and soreness. Usually there is an eruption—the skin cracks—it blisters—when the blister breaks there is often an oozing of liquid.

If not caught in time the disease usually spreads along the sole and sides of the foot, the skin reddens and may peel off.

CAUTION: The disease is infectious—someone in your own home may have it—find out tonight! Beware of bathmats either at home or in hotels—use a newspaper—it's safer. Wear your own slippers and walk as little as possible in your bare feet.

TREATMENT: After bathing the feet apply Moone's Emerald Oil generously, not only under and between the toes, but over the bottom and sides of foot. This powerful oil soothes and penetrates—stops the itching and checks the growth of the germs.

Pharmacists everywhere in America dispense Moone's Emerald Oil—a bottle lasts a long time.

By FAY KING

ARE YOU ONE who gets out of sorts when the mosquito type of friend stings you with those infinitesimal bitter sweet criticisms?

With what charm they can prick one's pride and pleasure. With a grateful gesture and a honeyed word they depreciate a treasure or an ideal.

"This color isn't quite correct. That gown is becoming. Why didn't you do this? Why didn't you do that?"

The only way to deal with them is to equip yourself with a mental fly swatter and squash these little cinders that sprout. Don't let them get into your eye.

Continue to like the things you like. And don't let your pleasure be spoiled by those gnats who delight to prick the bright little bubbles of an individual's taste.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Constitutional Bachelors

There are three varieties of bachelors. The conventional bachelor who thinks that he OUGHT to marry and is sure he's the constituted bachelor who was never intended to marry—and the confirmed bachelor who is determined not to marry.

The conscientious bachelor is the victim of circumstances or a mother complex. The constitutional bachelor is a BORN bachelor. And the confirmed bachelor is self made.

* * *

But to a woman they are all just potential husbands. For no man is a hopeless bachelor until he dies with his bachelor buttons on.

Still the girl who finally succeeds in marrying a constitutional bachelor will usually find him a hopeless husband. He doesn't conform to matrimony or become clubby even on the honeymoon. You can't change his spots or his habits or the brand of his tooth paste.

* * *

He really never gets USED to having a wife around. The marriage ceremony doesn't unite him to you; it merely attaches you to him.

A confirmed bachelor on the other hand, may be more or less settled in his ways and prejudices, yet there WAS a time when he was malleable and would listen to reason.

But a constitutional bachelor was a hard-boiled bachelor in his bassinet. He probably protested when his nurse misplaced his rattle or got his bottle of milk too warm.

He probably had a preference in colors and liked his porridge in a blue bowl. And no doubt he had an antipathy to flannel elephants or frowsy woolly dogs or frowned upon the pussycats embroidered on his bib.

* * *

No matter how fussy a constitutional bachelor may be about his personal belongings how dilatory or how tidy and how set in his habits no man is a woman can ever hope to CHANGE him.

A confirmed bachelor may have become set but before he jelled he was pliable and there is always a chance that he might be melted again.

But a constitutional bachelor was born in a certain MOULD and only when he lies under the lilies will he ever be anything but a BACHELOR.

And no doubt when he reaches heaven he'll fuss about the size of his halo and insist on picking out his own harp and having his wings at just the right angle.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, July 3

Although this promises to be a very lively day according to the astral testimonies, yet it may scarcely be predicted as fortunate or progressive. There is likely to be tenacious obstacles or congestion accompanied by some devastating or uprooting state of affairs, perilous to work and employment. Shun change and defer travel until more propitious rule. Social, domestic and affectional relations may offset these adverse conditions although they also have some perplexities.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of many unforeseen frustrating circumstances which will react on the employment and avenues of industry. Travel and change would be disastrous although quite probable. And, although there may be some felicitous personal affairs, yet these also are attended by complications and undesirable features. There may be a successful deal with a close corporation or secret societies.

A child born on this day should be given a very strict training and education in perseverance, resolution and fortitude.

Correct Manners

The Young Man Writes First

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

By reading your column one feels that you are an unpartial and strict judge so I am coming to you with my little problem.

On a recent short trip I became acquainted with a young man. When I was about to leave he asked me if I would write to him. I thought and told him so that he should write to me first. However, he insisted that I should write to him first. Which one of us was right? B A M.

Thank you, that is a high compliment.

You were right. The young man asks for the privilege of writing to the girl and then naturally he takes advantage of the right that she gives him by writing first.

Not in Good Taste

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My club is going on a theater party soon. Is it proper to go to a cabaret for supper after the theater? We are not to have escorts. The group consists of about eight girls. K K.

No, this would not be in good form and I think that without escorts you would all be very much embarrassed to go to this type of place.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

High Pressure Living Cause of Fatigue

DR. COPELAND

Why is it that so many persons, especially women, are looking so ragged and fatigued in this modern age? What means this tired feeling and what is the remedy for it?

There seems to be a different question to the fatigue we meet today. It does not come from too hard work. There is in the accumulated effects of the stress and strain of the world about us.

It certainly is not natural for a normal person to be always tired. Yet there are many families where the mother or a daughter is burdened with tiredness. She feels it from the time she gets up in the morning until she goes to bed at night.

It isn't because the modern housewife has the physical burdens her grandmother had that she is so fatigued. She has many convenient aids in her housework. Usually she has a smaller family than in former times. She has more time to herself and yet she is tired.

There is something wrong somewhere.

Fatigue which comes from good hard work is beautiful rather than otherwise. It is the fatigue which the weak night's sleep cannot cure that is serious. This is a more persistent kind of fatigue.

It is felt on waking up in the morning. It weights the entire day. It is like a low-lying mist all day interfering with pleasure and the capacity for work.

You have to struggle against it. There is no enthusiasm for anything. You feel as old as Methuselah.

The probability is the trouble lies in the high pressure of living today. There are too many activities going on about us. So much is crowded into a woman's day that she becomes a victim of nerve strain that is hard to overcome. She goes on incessantly with activities of all sorts hurrying through her meals always on the rush to go somewhere and up at all times of the night.

Unless she stops for a complete rest and unless the right habits of living are substituted for the wrong ones it is going to become a serious matter. You can't break all the laws of health and right living and not have serious consequences.

Breakdowns in health are all too common. Do not be one of the company of overfatigued nervous unhappy persons.

There are some persons who never learn how to play or relax. Everyone should have some hobby or some form of relaxation that changes the mental outlook. It may be golf or a good time at a dance if you make up your sleep and rest after it. But whatever you do, make it your time of fun and play and relaxation. Get plenty of sleep and moderate exercise. Build up your health. You will find yourself refreshed and ready for the routine of daily life.

Bringing up a family is made a much more complicated affair than it used to be. The young mother must understand infant psychology. She must know something about nutritional value. She must cope with the new ideas in education. Perhaps she has troubles of her own with the domestic routine poor help, or none and a thousand worries to boot.

Every woman should have some time in the day when she can be alone and rest and catch up with herself. It might add 10 years to her life if she would do this and keep to good habits of living.

NAME CRUISERS FLAGSHIPS

WASHINGTON July 2 AP —So the commander-in-chief may move among the forces to direct maneuvers and yet retain the full battleship strength in the line the Navy today announced a new policy whereby fast 10,000 ton cruisers are to become flagships

This was decided upon before the London naval conference when it became apparent that efforts would be made to limit the number of capital ships

With cruisers as flagships commanders will have the advantage of about 32 knots speed against a maximum of 22 on a battleship as well as the ability to maneuver because of an emergency and yet retain their full battleship strength in the rear

The Chicago now under construction at the Mare Island Navy Yard will replace the battleship Texas as flagship of the United States fleet The Augusta building at Newport News Va will supplant the battleship Wyoming as flagship of the scouting fleet and the Houston already commissioned will become flagship of the Asiatic fleet relieving the obsolete Pittsburgh which is now 20 years old

Richard Wagner ..... Richard Tauber.
Wilhelmine ..... Gertrude Hitz.
Krauss ..... Franz Egelhof.
Encouraged by the reception of his Flying Dutchman, which followed the early success earned with Rienzi, Wagner in desperation determines either to enter some other profession or devote himself to writing the music which he thought the public preferred.
However, despite the entreaties of Krauss, a powerful journalist, Wagner remained true to his artistic desires because of the encouragement of his friend Wilhelmine, an opera singer.

MODERN KONJOLA BROUGHT RELIEF IN THIS CASE

At Age of 67 Man Is Relieved of Neuritis and Stomach Trouble—New Medicine is Strongly Praised.

What joy and happiness over new health has Konjola, the new and different medicine, brought into the world! Just think what this fact means to all who suffer. In two years seven million bottles of Konjola have been used.

MR. W. F. WILSON

A medicine must have merit to make a record like that. Consider, as a typical example of Konjola at work, the case of Mr. W. F. Wilson, R. F. D. No. 3, Eights Four, Pa., near Pittsburgh. No wonder he was glad to tell what Konjola did for him. Would you not like to hear all about this new compound of 32 valuable, medicinal ingredients? Then meet the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, and hear the remarkable story of this remarkable medicine. See what Konjola does, and then decide what you will do about Konjola. But right now read the grateful words of Mr. Wilson, age 67, who recently told his experience to the Konjola Man in the following words:

"Konjola is the best medicine I ever used. It is simply wonderful. For five years I suffered from stomach trouble and neuritis. My stomach filled with gases after practically every meal, and I had severe pains of indigestion. Neuritis struck me in my neck and shoulders. The pains of this dread ailment were dreadful. The sluggish condition of my liver caused dizzy spells and bilious attacks.

"But a four weeks' treatment of Konjola has given me better health than I ever expected to have again. Gas, bloating and pains of indigestion are things of the dread past. I eat what I want, and sleep soundly. Neuritis pains have vanished, and I am gaining in weight and strength. Many of my friends have taken Konjola upon my recommendation, and they are all praising this fine medicine now."

Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It is all pure, wholesome medicine, and every drop works.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is also sold by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

TRADE ACTIVITY DECLINES IN DISTRICT

Seasonal Slump Earlier Than Usual but Already Some Improvement Is Reported

CLEVELAND, July 2 (AP)—Trade activity declined during the latter part of May and early June in the Fourth Federal Reserve Bank district, which includes Western Pennsylvania, the bank's monthly review stated today. The decline was seasonal, it reported, but has been earlier than usual.

Employment declined during May, the report added, and has been followed by a further decline in June. Cleveland reported a slight decline in May, but Pittsburgh reported sales, orders, production and employment increased. Coal production declined slightly in May, but was larger than in May, 1929, which was a record month. Building increased in May, the total was still the largest for any month this year.

How I coaxed him to eat

"ONCE I was worried. Mealtime was getting on my nerves. I prepared many appetizing dishes, but John simply would not eat—just 'minced' at his food. Perhaps sometimes a little grouchy. I began to fear he was 'slipping.' What was I to do? Love, home, happiness, business success—all depended upon an improvement in his condition. The blood tonic idea suggested itself to me. My Druggist recommended S.S.S. He told me that S.S.S. was a great blood tonic; that it had been successful for over 100 years; that it was made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and was beneficial to the most delicate system. Also that it would build up the blood and improve the processes by which the body is nourished. I brought home a large size bottle. John agreed to try it. Well, in just a few days I could see the difference. His improvement has been so rapid he is going to take several more bottles, and not only that, but he is now telling his friends to take S.S.S."

It is a known fact that when a man's system gets "run-down," he hasn't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play. It is dangerous to let the red-blood-count remain below normal.

It is natural to expect, when you get your blood cells up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, and those skin troubles to disappear. You should get hungry again, sleep soundly, firm flesh take the place of that which was flabby. You should feel strong and your nerves become steady.

You owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S. Its tonic effects will surprise you.

S.S.S.

S.S.S. is daily helping people to regain their strength. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. It promotes a keen appetite, gives vitality to the body, clears the skin and wards off disease. All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

The Wayne Murder Case

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Silas Wayne eccentric millionaire is mysteriously murdered in the presence of eight witnesses. In the act of reading his will to his heirs he crumples to his desk and a dagger is found stuck in his heart. Robin Dale reporter on the Daily Journal is assigned to the case. Dale learns that Dr. Bailey attending Wayne's ward had a violent quarrel with the old man. The unsigned will is found. It contains many motives for the crime. A mysterious warning notifies Gloria Dryden that she is to be the next victim.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER III.

"I was going upstairs to the library. Miss Gloria was explaining in nervous tones because they said you wanted one concerned that we will not be obliged to further inconvenience any innocent persons after this meeting in the library."

Fifteen minutes later they were all assembled in the musty old second-floor library. Only Jardin was left in the lower hall to see that no one left or entered the house and in the kitchen Dr. Wattles from headquarters was making some tests.

Wilfred Sands had taken his place behind the desk where Silas Wayne met his death. Robin Dale was taking the opportunity to study the three remaining members of the household who had been witnesses to the tragedy. Sarah Boulter a plain little person sat on the edge of her chair nervously twisting and untwisting a kerchief. In a deep arm-chair beside her sat her husband Stephen. There was an air of indifference about him. He had deep-set eyes which roved calmly about the room a ruddy complexion, and powerful massive frame. There was something indicative of roughness about him. It may have been the styleless-ness of his clothes or the round cut of his hair so sharply defined on his bulging neck, or both.

Robin Dale looked around for Claude Wayne. He identified everyone in the room twice, three times, but not once was there anyone who might be the old man's secretary. There was no question but the Claude Wayne was missing. If Jardin had been there Dale would have whispered the information to him. Sands had already started to speak so Dale did not care to interrupt. The absence would be discovered soon enough.

"It will no doubt interest you to know," the district attorney was saying, "what, in all probability, Silas Wayne was about to tell you this evening. He got far enough to intimate that he intended to inform each of you what was to be his or her legacy. The will he had prepared has been found. Fortunately or unfortunately as the case may turn out it is unsigned."

Sands paused to take the will from his pocket, unfold it and glance through it for a starting point. Finally he found it.

To Sarah Boulter he intended to leave $100,000 to be paid on the day she bore her first child. Sands paused and looked toward Sarah. There was a puzzled dismayed expression on her face. The effect was heightened by the sharp rising inflection of her voice as her startled words burst forth.

"But Uncle Silas knew I could never bear a child."

"Of course the dirty old lubber knew it." The sonorous voice of Stephen Boulter almost rumbled in the small room. "He might just as well a left you a million. He was so mean he didn't deserve to die with his boots on. He should've stretched out in a bunk an' suffered for seven years afore he passed on."

The heat one mentioned is Miss Sheen. Sands went on, ignoring Stephen Boulter's remark. "Because she made one fatal mistake during 29 years of service she was to have received the sum of one dollar, to be the legacy of her and her children in perpetuity."

The district attorney turned to Miss Sheen. Her head was bowed and she was sobbing. Dr. Bailey went to her side and spoke to her in whispered tones.

"Miss Sheen," said Sands in a gentle voice, "have you any children?"

"One," she answered finally in a hushed tone. "But why do you ask that? My child has nothing to do with this, nothing, I promise you!"

"And your husband, Miss Sheen?" It was Robin Dale's voice. Everyone turned sharply, even Wilfred Sands. Dale was watching Miss Sheen. She looked bewilderingly from him to the district attorney. Sands nodded signifying that she was to answer.

"He is not living." After her answer there was a long moment's silence.

Actor Fails On 'Lines' At Altar

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph)

HOLLYWOOD, July 2.

Memorizing dialogue for the talkies didn't do Hoot Gibson any good when it came to his wedding ceremony. He knew up to a line and the minister had to repeat it over again.

But as Hollywoodites are traditionally fickle, Hoot was entitled to "do" the thing.

The western star and Sally Eilers were married at Hoot's ranch about 40 miles from Hollywood. The ceremony was performed in the living room, which extends across the entire [illegible] house.

Hoot Gibson

The wedding party was moderately large and extremely merry. Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, the newly-weds, were there. Among the others were James and Lucile Gleason, Marion Nixon and her husband, Edward Hillman, Jr., Norman Kerry, Lew Cody and Sue Carol, and Nick Stuart.

If the superstition of catching the bridal bouquet amounts to anything, Marie Mosquini is headed straight for matrimony. She not only caught Bebe's bouquet, but Sally's as well.

Hoot and Sally hurried away a little after 11, but they did not leave on their honeymoon immediately, as Hoot's plane, with the trade-mark plainly visible, was seen flying low over Hollywood the following day. Incidentally, there were many aviators at the wedding. Hoot is a pilot, you know.

His and Sally's honeymoon trip will be made in an automobile, however, instead of by air. They're going to Banff and Lake Louise.

UNCHANGING.

They tell with great glee the gag that a song writer pulled on a former stage actor, now in Hollywood.

He came up and shook him by the hand.

"It's great," he said, "to meet a New York actor who has made a success in the movies without changing. You're one guy that's been the same all the way through. You were a heel then and you're a heel now."

A NIGHT OFF

This department took a night off from seeing plays and pictures and went out to the Ambassador Hotel to help greet Ted Fio Rito and his orchestra.

Hollywood was well represented in the crowd that packed the Cocoanut Grove. Alice White was sitting at a table in front of me and Betty Compson and Hugh Trevor just behind me. Betty and Hugh sat out every dance and seemed much engrossed with each other.

I caught a glimpse of Lina Basquette, Johnny Mack Brown and his wife and W. S. Van Dyke, director of "Trader Horn," among a large party at the upper end of the grove. Lina Basquette is one of Hollywood's best dancers, and should be, as she was premiere ballerina in the Ziegfeld Follies.

Johnny Mack Brown is adept on the floor, too, although, unless my eyes deceived me, he was a little disconcerted when the orchestra swung into a tango. Fortunately, this writer was safe at a table at the time. Otherwise, anything might have happened.

TOO AWFUL

With the well-known gleam in his eye, Mickey Neilan says that a certain Hollywood studio has just made a picture so bad that they had to film retakes to put it on the shelf.

Howard Hughes, the man who spent three years and several million dollars making "Hell's Angels," is reported to be financing experiments on a steam-driven automobile. This project almost equals the record of "Hell's Angels," as it is said to be two years now since the experiments began.

The young film producer is keenly interested in inventions. He has just purchased a color process and will finance its development.

It was from an invention of his father that Hughes got most of his millions, a patented oil drilling bit.

DO YOU KNOW that John Boles was a singing instructor in an exclusive girl's school not long before he entered the movies?

Dramatic Talkers!

Winifred Westover, as the slavey heroine in "Lummox," opening Friday in the Aldine, looks from a kitchen window and sees life as a high road of brave endeavor.

Lon Chaney used to be the man of many faces. Now, in his first talkie "The Unholy Three," coming Friday to the Penn, he is a man of many voices also.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Resignation

The moon is quite as yellow as before,
The breezes drift with all their old allure;
But we are well aware it takes far more
Than this to make a vagrant love endure;

Our glances meet with steady unconcern,
Our phrases now are dull and commonplace,
And so we grasp what lovers all must learn,
That Cupid sets a rather dizzy pace.

Well, that is that, the binding vows we made
Are broken with the coolness of a kiss;
Why stand about and watch the embers fade,
Since love is just a game of hit and miss?

I will forget that love once loitered here—
Even as you've forgotten me, my dear!

"Always Belittlin'"

The other Monday evening James J. Walker, the town Mayor, was listening to radio entertainers and others who are on the air. As the program concluded, a confrere ankled into the Mayor's shack.

"Ah, a radio fan!" said the visitor.

"Have you ever listened to Walter Winchell?"

"Just heard him," said James, who wins the season's award for Non-Committal Comments.

"Well, said the confrere, "how is he?"

Add Surefire Laffs

Benny Leonard has been enticing robust howls with it since he quit the prize ring. The one-time lightweight champ was called on at the opening of the Sea Breeze Beach Club (Long Beach) the other night and after the roof-lifting ovation subsided, he swiftied:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I cannot sing and I cannot dance—but I'll fight anyone in the house."

The Squelch Terrible

At the Friars Club the other afternoon, Bugs Baer saw a certain actor in a new suit of clothes. "Where ja have that made?" queried Bugs.

"In London," replied the upstage ham.

"Were you there?" countered the fastest thinker in town.

Tee, Hee

Far be it from one of his contributors to twit the editor of the New Movie magazine, but p. 73 offers a full-page likeness of John Barrymore, the caption accompanying it reading: "John Barrymore as Moby Dick in his new talkie version of 'The Sea Beast.'"

We always thought Moby Dick was the whale.

Just for the Records

President Hoover, it appears, has dropped 15 pounds since assuming his great responsibility.

Now that Mr. Coolidge has turned Columnist, it is a safe wager to make that he will lose that much weight and twice as many friends if he desires to be interesting and readable.

Mr. Coolidge, however, need not worry about losing friends. For every one he loses there will be a dozen of the fair-weather brand.

Circumstantial Evidence

He probably will never be kind to a woman again. The other night at one of those orgies in the 50's he observed a chorus girl pass out after the third highball and he placed her limp form on a divan where she snored soundly.

Later when the alleged party broke up he couldn't arouse her. He took his departure. The following night every detective on Broadway was looking for him on her charge that he thefted her diamond wrist watch.

The whole street buzzed about his turning thief and he was eventually found and brought to the station house.

"That's the man!" she shrieked.

He explained that he removed the watch because he feared someone might steal it—but that he placed it in her purse.

Examination of her purse proved he was right.

But it will be many years, one fears, before he will live it down. Broadway, being the village it is.

Oop!

The publisher of the N. Y. Times met Marie Dressler on the liner and persuaded her to immediately visit the plant of the great newspaper. He hurried her to the Times dining room just as luncheon was being served.

"Here, here!" he cried. "Stop eating awhile, we have Marie Dressler with us!" Then he urged Miss Dressler to stand up and say a few words.

"I'm starved!" bellowed Marie, as she sat down.

Merciless Truth

A motion picture editor reports that there was the usual crowd of admirers choking the pavements in front of a theater in Hollywood, watching two popular screen stars waiting for their cars.

"It's a shame," mumbled an old fogy in the crowd, "the way people stand around and stare at those actresses. It sure is a pity."

"Save your pity," interrupted a Has-Been. "They'll need it more when there ISN'T a crowd to stare!"

Next for Page One

The next Wall Streeter and Broadway Santy Claus to crash the Page Ones will be a middle-aged gent who is getting weary of paying A Certain Divorcee's Bill, knowing that the minute he goes up, others come down. He is trying to get out of the arrangement, but she threatens trouble. She probably has a sweet weapon, the low-down on his stock deals, information he told her when Love Was Alive.

The sitch-ee-ay-shun is getting more tense each day, and a grand blow-off, with plenty of mud-slinging, may be expected any minute.

It has been going on for almost two years, the girl telling intimates all along the name of her ——— so that she may have impressive witnesses when she puts the screws on.

Just a couple of phonies taking each other, and some fun for the scandal-loving public when the fireworks begin.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

If you are expecting a hilarious crowd to visit you on any given summer afternoon, I'd suggest that you keep a trayful of ice cream in the freezing compartment of your refrigerator. Add a spoonful of it here and there to the various cold drinks you'll be called on to serve and see how popular it makes them and you.

Vanilla is usually the safest kind of ice cream to store away against the coming callers but if you happen to know that another flavor will blend satisfactorily, then by all means stock it.

For sweetening drinks it is a good plan to have on hand a bottle of plain sugar and water syrup. It is much easier to get the right state of sweetness with this sugar solution, and there will be no deposit of sugar in the bottom of pitcher and glasses. Two cups of sugar and 2 cups of water, boiled together for a few minutes, is a good proportion and can be used for dilution purposes, too. For simple sweetening the syrup may be made much richer.

Would you like a few good punch recipes? Of course you would. Show me the hostess who doesn't need them.

COFFEE SHAKE—Four cups strong coffee, 1 cup maple syrup, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup vanilla ice cream. Mix all together in a cocktail shaker and pour over one ice cube in all glasses. A foamy, rich drink. If you haven't a large shaker, do one-half the drink at a time.

TEA PUNCH—Juice of 6 oranges, juice of 3 lemons, juice of 1 grapefruit, 3 cups tea, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups ginger ale. Mix the fruit juices. Dissolve the sugar in the hot tea and cool. Combine tea and fruit juices and chill thoroughly. Serve with ice cubes in which cherries have been frozen, adding the ginger ale to the first mixture just before pouring it into the glasses.

I had a most marvelous salad the other day. I had been invited to lunch by an old school friend of mine—on, I take that back, she's a very young school friend of mine—no, I take that back, her cookery. And after lunch I had to admit she had every reason to be, for it was the sort of lunch that makes strong business women break down and long to be turned loose in a pretty kitchen!

I got this recipe from my friend only by sternly telling her it was her duty to give it to me, so that I might give it to you, and here it is.

½ teaspoon salt, a cupful diced cucumber, 1 package gelatin, 2 cups boiling water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup mayonnaise, 1 cupful whipped cream, lettuce, tomatoes and minced parsley.

Wash the sweetbreads in cold water. Place in saucepan with onion, lemon, bay leaf and cold water to cover. Simmer 20 minutes. Drain. Chill. Remove membrane and tissue and break into pieces. There should be about 2 cups. Chill.

Pare cucumbers and dice fine; there should be 1 cupful. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Cool. Add lemon juice, salt and pepper. Beat slightly. Strain gelatin into mayonnaise.

Combine the sweetbreads, diced cucumber and celery, mayonnaise, whipped cream, lemon gelatin and 1 cupful chopped pimentos. Pour into individual molds. Arrange tomato slices around edge of molds. Chill several hours. Serve on lettuce and sprinkle with minced parsley.

You may be sure that the dessert will do honor to the meal, if it is pretentious or simple, provided you don't put it together with distinction and individuality. You are very apt to treat about the same way from a disappointing failure.

If you choose such dessert as Tapioca Ice Box Pudding, Ballerina Fluff, or Pear-n-Whip, there will be no high failure. Not only the preparation of these desserts are you hovering over the kitchen stove for an interminable time, either mixing or stirring, but chest purple of the dessert and forget about it, thereby saving time.

TAPIOCA ICE BOX PUDDING—One-half cupful tapioca, 2 cupfuls grape juice, 1 cupful water, 1 cupful orange juice, 1 tablespoonful lemon juice, cut fine and the juice from 1 bottle, 1½ cupfuls maraschino cherries, 1 pint whipped cream.

Cook tapioca and grape juice in double boiler 15 minutes, or until clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar. Remove from heat and add orange juice, cherries and cherry juice. Cool.

Before tapioca mixture thickens, pour into greased mold arranged with split lady fingers or strips of sponge cake around sides. Chill in refrigerator 12 hours. Unmold, slice, and serve with whipped cream.

BANANA FLUFF—One teaspoonful gelatin, 1 cupful cold water, 4 bananas, 1 tablespoonful lemon juice, 1 cupful whipped cream, few grains salt, ¾ cupful powdered sugar.

To the bananas which have been thoroughly mashed add the fruit juices and a level tablespoonful of grated orange rind. Add the gelatin which has been soaked for 5 minutes in cold water and dissolved over hot water. Beat in the sugar and fold in whipped cream. Pour in a refrigerator tray and chill.

YUMMY SANDWICHES—One cream cheese or an equal quantity of cottage cheese, 2 cupfuls minced ham, 20 slices white or rye bread, 1 small bunch watercress.

Pick the leaves from the watercress and cream them into the cheese, together with the ham. Spread between thin slices of thin buttered bread. A little mayonnaise or French dressing may be added to this sandwich filling if desired. Makes 10 sandwiches.

BAKED BEAN AND VEGETABLE SALAD SANDWICHES—One can baked beans, 18 slices graham or whole wheat bread, ½ cupful grated American cheese, one cupful shredded cabbage, 4 tomatoes, mayonnaise.

Allow 3 slices of toasted bread for each sandwich. On the first slice, buttered, place a layer of hot baked beans and sprinkle with grated cheese. On this place another slice of toast and cover with shredded cabbage and thin slices of tomato. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover with third slice of toast spread with mayonnaise on the side nearest the vegetables. Serve at once. Makes six sandwiches.

HAM-MUSTARD CLUB SANDWICHES—Twelve slices rye bread, ½ pound thinly sliced ham, ¼ cupful butter, ½ teaspoonful dry mustard, ½ cupful minced pickle.

Spread the bread with butter mixed with the dry mustard and place a slice of ham sprinkled with the minced pickle between the slices. Toast. Makes 6 sandwiches.

CHOCOLATE CAKE WITH A FRUIT FILLING—Cut 2 squares of bitter chocolate into small pieces, add 2 tablespoonfuls of boiling water, melt over hot water, stirring occasionally.

Cream ½ cup of shortening and 1½ cups of sugar together and stir in the chocolate. Separate 2 eggs, beat the yolks and add. Then stir in a teaspoon of vanilla.

Sift 2 cups of cake flour which has been sifted first and measured, with ½ teaspoon of salt and 3 teaspoons of baking powder, and add alternately with ½ cup of milk. Lastly fold in the egg whites, beaten stiff.

Bake in 2 layers for 25 to 30 minutes at 325 to 350 degrees. When cool, turn out and spread with—

Fruit Filling—Mix ¼ cup evaporated milk and ¼ cup of water in a double boiler and add ¼ cup of sugar. Stir until the sugar is dissolved, then add ¼ cup chopped dates, ¼ cup chopped figs, ¼ cup chopped raisins and cook until thick.

Cool, add 1 teaspoon of vanilla and the nutmeats and spread between the layers.

EGGS AND VEGETABLES IN ASPIC—One level tablespoonful gelatine, ¼ cupful cold water, 1 cupful consomme, ½ cupful strained tomato juice, 2 hard-cooked eggs, ½ cupful cooked peas, 1 small tomato, ½ cupful asparagus tips.

Soak 1 tablespoonful gelatine in cold water. Add tomato juice and consomme to the gelatine. When dissolved pour about ½-inch layer into a wet mold. Stand mold in

LAMB KIDNEYS EN BROCHETTE WITH NOODLES—Have the lamb cut in pieces for serving. Put the meat in a saucepan, cover with boiling water and cook until tender. Remove from the water, cool, sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and brown in butter. Arrange on a platter around it 1½ cupfuls noodles made from the recipe in which the meat was cooked, after removing all fat, and well-seasoned egg

BAKED EGG AND ASPARAGUS—Cook 1 bunch asparagus, cut off and remove the tough ends. Cook in boiling water until tender, keeping the tips above the water for the first 10 minutes. Lay the asparagus around the edge of a buttered pie dish.

Drop 6 eggs one by one into a saucer and separate each egg from the shell. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Bake until the eggs are set, about 10 minutes. Sprinkle with a few grains paprika before serving.

SHRIMP OMELET—Beat 4 eggs with ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper and 4 tablespoons cold water and beat until thick and lemon-colored. Beat four egg whites until stiff, cutting and folding them in the first mixture until they have taken up the mixture. Heat omelet pan and butter sides and bottom. Turn in the mixture, spread evenly and place in a hot oven (not too hot) for 5 minutes. When puffed and brown, remove from oven, cut in squares and serve with whipped cream.

SPICY MEAT LOAF—Mix together 2 pounds of chopped beef, 1 cup finely chopped suet, three small onions minced, 2 cups bread crumbs, 2 eggs slightly beaten, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons Worchestershire sauce, 4 tablespoons horseradish, 1 teaspoon dry mustard and ½ green pepper minced. When well mixed pack into a buttered loaf pan, cover top with ¼ of a cup of tomato catsup. Bake 1 hour in a moderately hot oven.

GINGERBREAD WITH MARSHMALLOW FILLING—Cream ½ cup shortening until soft and waxy, add 1 cup molasses, 1 egg well beaten, 2½ cups of flour mixed and sifted with 1¾ teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ginger and 1 cup sour milk. Beat vigorously, turn into a buttered and floured pan and bake in moderate oven for 25 minutes. Remove from the pan, cut in half crosswise and put together with marshmallows. Put in the oven and let stand 3 minutes in the hot oven. Remove to serving dish, cool slightly and cut in squares and serve with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

CABBAGE AU GRATIN—Select a small firm white head of cabbage. Wash well, then place the separated leaves in boiling salted water and cook 15 minutes. Drain, then in a buttered casserole dish place a layer of the cabbage leaves, a layer of bread crumbs, cover with cream sauce and repeat until all the cabbage is used. Top with buttered crumbs and dot with butter. Bake until the crumbs are a golden brown, about 20 minutes. Serve from the casserole.

SHRIMP SALAD—Remove the contents of 1 large can of shrimps, rinse in cold water and then drain thoroughly. Dry between towels. Marinate the shrimps for 30 minutes in a French dressing highly seasoned. Place in the refrigerator to chill while marinating. Drain from the dressing and to 2 cups of prepared shrimps and ½ cup of chopped celery, 1 green pepper chopped, 1 pimento chopped, 2 hard cooked eggs chopped, and salt and pepper to season. When thoroughly mixed, add enough mayonnaise to hold together. Pile on chilled lettuce, top with a sprinkling of paprika and a small radish rose.

SWEETBREADS SALAD—Soak 1 pair sweetbreads in cold water for 1 hour, then parboil for 20 minutes in salted water to which 1 tablespoon vinger has been added. Drain and plunge them immediately in cold water. The small membranes should be removed. Dice the sweetbreads and add ½ tablespoon oil. Season with ½ teaspoon salt and a few grains pepper, and place in the refrigerator for 1 hour. Just before serving fold the sweetbreads together with 1 diced cucumber and ½ cup mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce leaves garnished with mayonnaise and arrange the potato salad on the same plate.

Celery Tickles Palate and Benefits Stomach

Its Use Comes Down From the Dark Ages, Says Dr. Copeland, and Is Recommended Today for Many and Varied Uses on the Dinner Table.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator from New York.

It has been said of Americans that we make eating a dull business. Perhaps we do not make so much of our meals as do many other people of the world. As I see it, however, more and more the public is becoming educated to the importance of a proper diet and is making better use of meal time.

The diet must be carefully watched and food made palatable and attractive if good health is to be maintained. Nobody should forget this.

In selecting foods, vegetables are of first importance. Among all the vegetables celery is one of the most popular and valuable. The good flavor of this food is derived from its essential-oil content. It possesses certain minerals of great value to the body. Lime, magnesia, potash, soda, phosphorous, sulphur and iron are found in this plant. The vitamins, too, are present in celery.

Of course, some of these mineral substances are present only in small quantities, but potash is generously represented. This means that taking celery is likely to overcome acidity in the system and to promote alkalinity of the blood, a desirable thing.

SUPPLIES ROUGHAGE

Celery was known of old. It was spoken of in the "Odyssey," and was mentioned by Pliny the Elder. It is quite possible that the vegetable may be traced to Greece or the Dardennelles.

When we take food it serves several purposes. It is not enough to have it nourishing to supply the chemical needs of the body. But it must possess certain physical qualities. The system needs something bulky what is well called "roughage," to brush the intestinal walls. Without such substance the intestinal tract fails to do its work. Celery supplies the need to a considerable degree.

The right way to begin a meal is to take something that will stimulate the gastric juices and prepare the stomach to take care for the foods which are to follow. It is hard to find a more appealing food and one better suited to this purpose, than crisp, iced, attractive looking celery. After you have munched a stalk or two of this delicious herb your flagging appetite is restored to normal, and eating takes on an added zest.

INVALUABLE FOR HEALTH

Everybody should eat salads. Celery is indispensable to most of them. But celery need not be eaten raw, although you are getting the maximum amount of the contained valuable minerals and vitamins by eating it raw. Celery cut into small pieces, boiled in milk, and properly seasoned, makes a very nourishing and attractive dish.

The coarser and tougher stalks of celery may be boiled and the water used in making celery soup.

Celery stuffed with cheese is a valuable combination and is a most delectable morsel for a luncheon or supper.

I have many letters from persons who want to know what to eat in order to keep thin. Celery is one of the foods that fills such a need. One may eat this with impunity so far as keeping thin is concerned.

You cannot have good digestion and perfect health if you do not include the foods that afford roughage. All the green vegetables are in this dish and for other reasons are invaluable for health. Do not omit celery and the other green vegetables which are so abundant at this time of the year. They are the best of foods.

For an enjoyable FOURTH AT PICNIC OR CAMP

When noon or evening rolls around—after you've been in a swimming and games are done—it's great to sit down to real food and drink. When there's that right kind there are if there're from Kroger's) there'll too the day off in great style. Here are a few suggestions.

Picnic Sandwiches

½ lb. Cream Cheese — ½ can Pimentos
½ doz. Sweet Pickles — ½ lb. Boiled or Minced Ham
Chop finely or grind the ham, slice pickles and olives and mix with cream cheese and pimentos. Butter thin slices of Pullman bread and place a lettuce leaf on one slice, then a layer of filling and place the other slice on and wrap in wax paper. Fold the ends over and tie with a ribbon if you have been lightly buttered, not soak the bread if slices have been lightly buttered.

Pineapple Iced Tea

You know what a wonderful refreshing drink iced tea is. Mary Jemaine's recipe is a little different from the fashion. Make it as usual, then add a can of Country Club Pineapple Juice and one cup of sugar for each quart of tea. Chill. Garnish with slices of pineapple and maraschino cherries. Country Club Pineapple Juice is delicious by itself. Try it. Then add the tea for a mixed beverage of delightful flavor.

PLANS APPEAL ON CITIZENSHIP

BEAVER, Pa., July 2.—Attorney George A. Baldwin, counsel for Dr. Robert Clarke, vice president of Geneva College, Beaver Falls, said he would appeal to the United States Supreme Court in the educator's fight for citizenship. Dr. Clarke's case is similar to that of Prof. Douglass Clyde McIntosh, who won a fight for citizenship in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, New York. McIntosh would not take an oath to bear arms in defense of the United States in any war in which the country might be engaged.

Dr. Clarke was refused premission by the Beaver County courts to take a modified oath to the effect that he would defend the constitution as long as it did not interfere with his religious convictions. An appeal was taken to the State Supreme Court and denied.

FILE NEW PLEA FOR DAGUE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 2.—Eighteen additional reasons for a new trial are cited in a petition filed in court here supplementary to one already filed in behalf of W. Glenn Dague, convicted of first degree murder with death penalty in connection with the murder of Corporal Brady Paul. The petition was filed by Attorneys Thomas W. Dickey and Benjamin Jarrett.

Nine of the new reasons are based on alleged errors in admitting certain testimony and permitting certain arguments of the commonwealth to the jury, while the other nine deal largely with errors alleged to have been made by the court in its charge to the jury. Argument on the petitions will be heard the week of July 7.

Survey Gas Line To Eastern Markets

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 2.—Surveys were started this week for a pipe line which, it is understood, will be built by the Columbia Gas and Electric Company from Waynesburg to Morgantown, W. Va., to connect with a trunk line leading to the Eastern seaboard.

The line will serve as a connecting link for Greene County fields to Eastern industrial and domestic markets.

Attorney Linked In Extortion Ring

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 2.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of William Kenealy, attorney of Cleveland and for many years a lawyer of Youngstown. Kenealy is charged with extortion in connection with a "shakedown" ring which has been operating throughout this section. It is claimed that he received part of $175 alleged to have been obtained from George S. Scott, a palmist of Mineral Ridge, O.

Citizen Soldiers Assigned to Camps

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 2.—Sixty-four men of Washington County have departed for Forts Washington, Hoyle and Meyer for 30 days in military training camps. Officers of the One Hundred and Tenth Infantry and of reserve units in the district are preparing to leave Saturday for Camp Meade.

Faces Workhouse Over Alimony Claim

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 2.—If Albert Rearigh fails to pay his wife, Alice Rearigh, of Vandergrift, $12 a week by July 7 he must serve a term in the Allegheny County workhouse, the courts here have ruled.

Pennsylvania Buys Land for Terminal

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 2.—The Pennsylvania Railroad is purchasing land on West Federal street, adjoining its passenger station, for its terminal. Several parcels have already been acquired.

Airman Points Out House Fire to Farm Workers

BEAVER, Pa., July 2.—An air mail pilot en route from Cleveland to Pittsburgh flew over a field on the farm of J. B. McKenna until he attracted the attention of workers.

Then he flew in the direction of a column of smoke they had failed to notice. Members of the McKenna family found the home partly destroyed. Loss is estimated at $8,000.

MILLS RUN FULL ON PIPE ORDERS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 2.—Commenting on the steel pipe situation, President Frank Purnell, of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, said:

"We have on our books sufficient orders for large lap-weld sizes and seamless pipe to insure full operation of mills making these classes of material during the entire summer and late into the fall. It is quite likely that the pipe mills making larger sizes will be operated to full capacity during the balance of the year."

It is estimated that Sheet & Tube and the Republic Steel Corporation have about 450,000 tons of steel pipe business on the books, approximating $10,000,000.

Heavy demand for pipe was the outstanding feature of the steel market during June, which otherwise was a dull month.

Passenger Train Service Dropped

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., July 2.—New Philadelphia after July 31 will be without Pennsylvania Railroad passenger service, the first time since the late forties, when the Tuscarawas branch of the Cleveland and Pittsburgh was built. The State Utilities Commission granted the cancellation of the service.

American Railway Express Company's application for motor truck service between Minerva and Sandyville, where connections will be made with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, will be heard by the commission July 17.

Lightning Kills Boy, Injures Companion

GREENVILLE, Pa., July 2.—Virgil Barnes, 14, was killed and George Junk, 12, seriously injured when lightning struck a tree under which they were sitting during a severe electrical storm.

The boys had taken shelter under the tree and were watching several companions swimming in a creek nearby.

Third Ward Vote Fraud Tests Up

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

In Natrona Heights, residents tell you of the statue that stands by a grave in one of their two cemeteries. The statue is a good likeness of a woman who died some years ago. Each year her husband has it repainted in a different color. Its present shade is white. It has been gold, pink, bronze and green.

No politician, we nevertheless cherish the hope that there will be a William Pfarr alley, or perhaps the William Pfarr Tubes. This hope was renewed a few days ago when the city's new Warrington Park swimming pool was named for Magistrate Thomas D. Jones, the alderman who is a ward chairman.

Probably to a greater extent than any other city, Pittsburgh names its properties for its politicians. We have had the Armstrong Tunnel, Babcock boulevard, Miles Bryan High School, Sullivan Playground and so on.

Some day there will be no more things to name and then where will we be? We have pondered this problem and with keen foresight found a solution. We suggest that the political powers plunge into the pages of history and rename just whatever they feel like renaming. Thus we might have the Armstrong Parthenon, the Babcock way (rather than the Appian way) and the Thomas D. Jones Coliseum . . . China's famous wall is in danger.

Twelve-year-old Daniel Canterman, of Tannehill street, has got off to a bad start as an autograph collector by soliciting the town's sport writers . . . Fred Turbyille, Pitt's new sports press agent, used to blow off the suds in Baltimore with H. L. Mencken . . . Since that fellow was supposedly cured of deafness in an airplane crash, 25 other deaf ones have applied for rides at Bettis Field . . . Frank Snyder, who used to write pieces for the papers here, is investigating the cactus in Mexico . . .

If you lose something on a street car, the conductor who finds it becomes the permanent owner if you fail to apply for it after three months or so. More women's pocketbooks are lost than any other article. Once, when the car came to a sudden stop, a Chinaman's false teeth fell into the fare box. Later he recovered them at the Railway's lost and found office. Another time a young woman who had been having a large evening dropped her engagement ring into the box deliberately. She never applied for it, so it went to the conductor.

Charles Henry McDonald is the gentleman who introduced the golf driving ranges to Pittsburgh. He himself has never played a regular course but he likes to boast that he is nevertheless one of the town's best drivers. With regularity he sends a ball 225 to 250 feet. He used to be a ballplayer down in Bluefield, W. Va., where the Hatfields carried on their feuds. On the side, McDonald was correspondent for big city newspapers and he telephoned reports of enthusiastic shootings while bullets whizzed by him. He never took sides in the feuds, which establishes him as a shrewd fellow.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 2.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Coolidge's sermonettes are running more to the spiritual than the political. He has layed off the tariff and Uncle Joe Grundy, in favor of faith, and passed up the disarmament treaty and Hiram, in favor of divine guidance and sets more store by eternal things than he does by the United States Senate. He wants us to get back to the old early New England tradition, where if you wasn't praying, you was burning somebody that was, so it looks like I am left single-handed to cope with Borah, Smoot and all material and temporal matters.

Yours,
WILL.

CASES WILL BE LAID BEFORE COMMISSION

Sixth Ward Residents Who Failed to Defend Status To Receive New Summons

Members of the Registration Commission expected to receive today test cases selected from the Third Ward, in which five varieties of irregularities were charged by Donald Anderson, attorney for the Allegheny County Bar Association committee on election frauds.

Cases wherein voters registered on tax receipts issued on orders signed by other persons were heard and disposed of recently by Judge James H. Gray, who ruled that such registrations were illegal and ordered them stricken from the books.

The commission also expected to send registered letters today to about 31 voters of the First District of the Sixth Ward who failed to appear when previously summoned to prove their qualifications, mainly naturalization.

Eight voters responded to the first summons and established they were qualified to vote, but the hearing resulted in Thomas Kilgallon reprimanding the district registrars for the disorderly appearance of the books.

GLASSPORT BOY HELD IN EAST

Arthur Milligan, Jr., 19, son of a wealthy Glassport contractor, is being held by Philadelphia police after being found asleep in a stolen car, according to a dispatch from that city.

Glassport authorities said they had learned that the youth had left home several days ago after his father had reprimanded him, because the running board of the family automobile had been broken off while young Milligan was driving the car.

No word had been received from him since his disappearance. Glassport police wired Philadelphia authorities to hold the young man until a member of his family arrived.

TRAFFIC GROUP SEEKS HORSE OWNERS' AID

Questionnaire Asks Ideas On Routing to Reduce Congestion on Streets

Questionnaires are to be sent to operators of all horse-drawn vehicles in the city to determine a method of reducing traffic congestion, it was decided at a meeting of the trucking and deliveries section of the Better Traffic Committee yesterday.

The questionnaire will ask each operator as to his views on deliveries and to the routing of through traffic around the business district.

To further the solution of the horse problem in downtown Pittsburgh, a meeting is to be held early in August with all operators of horse-drawn vehicles who use the downtown district to discuss delivery hours. The sub-committee projects the timing of deliveries so they will not conflict with the peak volumes hours of traffic in the triangle.

A further protest to the use of horse-drawn vehicles in the Liberty Tubes was made at the meeting yesterday.

The boy came to the city in search of employment and was to meet his mother later in the day. He failed to meet her or to return home. During his serious illness, physicians from all parts of the East visited him and the case attracted great attention.

CITY MOVES TO COLLECT VAST SUM

Supply to Be Shut Off If Delinquents Fail to Settle; $1,500,000 on Books

In an effort to collect $1,500,000 worth of delinquent water taxes, the city of Pittsburgh plans one of the most drastic steps in its history.

Unless the bills are paid immediately, City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley announced today, the water will be shut off until the obligations have been met.

The same policy will be used as far as current water bills are concerned. The new system will be inaugurated July 8, Schooley announced.

15-YEAR BILLS

The delinquent bills, he said, represent the equivalent of more than one mill of taxation. Some of the accounts have been owed since 1915. Schooley said:

"If we succeed in collecting this amount, it is certain that no tax increase on real estate would be necessary to run our government next year, and there might be a reduction. Had we collected these taxes as we went along the possibility is that the tax burden on real estate would be from one-half to one mill less than at present."

Schooley declared it neither fair nor good business to penalize people who pay promptly by a tax increase made necessary by those who fail to meet their bills. He said:

"We appreciate the fact that owners of real estate in the city frequently fall upon evil times, and are not harsh in our treatment where delinquencies in real estate taxes are concerned. But the tax for water is a different proposition. It is really not a tax at all. It is only a service charge. It can be placed in the same category as the rate paid by a consumer to our public utility companies for gas or electricity or transportation.

DEBTS PILED HIGH

"If the people do not pay their gas or electric light bills promptly, their services are shut off. If they do not have carfare they are not allowed to ride. The water delinquencies have piled so high now that it becomes necessary for the City of Pittsburgh to pursue the same policy as any public utility corporation.

"In most cases none of these water bills is large. It must be remembered that those owing them have all used this water and have had the benefit thereof. It must be remembered also that the same people whose taxes are delinquent are still using this water, and are not even paying their current bills.

"If bills for water which are past due are not paid immediately, the city will be compelled to shut off the service and discontinue it thereafter, until the bills are paid. In addition to this all water consumers will be expected to pay current bills promptly or the water will be shut off. We will inaugurate this new system beginning July 8."

Detectives Follow Ruby And Capture Morgan

CHAPTER XV.

Duncan Morgan walked all the way in to the city. He was hatless and there was a loco look in his eyes. People turned and stared after him. But he walked alone, with no one near him, for he heeded not a soul. Everything in him seemed numb. . . . What his thoughts were on that dizzy trek he could never afterward reassemble.

He did not think . . . He had left Anne groggy on the ground and he, himself, was unconscious—yet he had control of his muscles. How useless they were now—what strength had they lent him in his greatest crisis?

He gained his room somehow and flopped across the bed. He lay there for hours, inert, unable to move, not caring whether he was alive or dead. How long he remained like that he did not know, but finally he was aroused by his landlady, who handed him a telegram.

He stared at it through filmed eyes, and then slowly opened it. He glanced to the end first, and saw it was from Anne.

He read:

"JOHN WHY DID YOU LEAVE ME I DIDN'T KNOW WHAT I WAS SAYING NOTHING MATTERS MAN I LOVE YOU COME TOMORROW FORGET TONIGHT NO DON'T FORGET TONIGHT ANNE."

Morgan sat on the edge of his bed and gazed into space. What should he do? Had he the right to subject her to life such as he could give her—the life of a hunted outlaw? If they could go away and begin life anew! But would the gang and the bloodhounds let them? "Nothing matters man," she had written—and she had meant it.

A Warning

Ruby Says He Is Marked For Death

He had no idea of the time, but after hours of uncertainty he fell back on the bed and sank into a violent slumber. He was awakened by a loud knocking. It was daylight without.

"Mr. Everett!" a voice called. He went to the door.

"There is a young lady to see you—she says she must talk to you."

"I'll be right down," Morgan answered.

He threw some water on his face and combed his hair. His eyes were bloodshot and swollen. His heart was going like a runaway engine.

Downstairs he found Ruby.

"My God, Dunk, get out of this burg, quick—they're goin' to put you on the spot tonight."

"Yeah?" slowly enunciated Morgan, in a tone of distaste. "And why are they goin' to put me on the spot?"

"They blue-printed it last night. They got an idea that you are bargaining with the district attorney to turn up the whole gang an' get a pardon. They'd give you the mercy o' Judas. Take it on the lam!"

"Ruby, I can't go—now."

Surprise Call

Four Strangers Visit Morgan

"My God, Dunk, you've GOT to go! Don't you understand what I mean? They're goin' to settle you!"

"Yes, I know, but it's too late. I'll see them and talk to them—they can't do this—not to Dunk."

"The boat has sailed, Dunk, and if you did they'd know I wised you and they'd croak me.

ASSESSORS BEGIN COUNTY CANVASS

150 FIELD MEN TOLD TO LIST EVERY VOTER

Board Officials Point to Court Ban on All Names Turned in By Politicians

County assessors today will begin the triennial assessment with special instructions from their superiors to enroll every resident of voting age and to appraise all taxable property.

The orders were issued by Chairman George J. Schad and Secretary C. J. McBride, of the board for the assessment and revision of taxes, to more than 150 field men at a meeting yesterday in the Court House.

Schad explained that the omission of a residents name from a field assessor's book, if not corrected in time, would deprive that citizen of the voting privilege at the next election.

POLITICAL LISTS BARRED

For years, he declared, it had been the custom to add the names of residents furnished by district political workers to the assessors' books almost to the eve of primary day, but that the practice was stopped last year on orders from the judges of Common Pleas Court. It was rumored that approximately 40,000 names were added immediately before the primary of the last mayoralty election.

Another practice stopped by the courts about the same time was the issuance of tax receipts for voting purposes on names submitted through assessors' books delivered to the delinquents tax collector without first having been submitted to the county treasurer.

The latter was challenged before the last mayoralty primary and resulted in about 12,000 citizens losing their voting privilege.

STRICT CANVASS

The field men were instructed to interview the representative of every home in their territory and in cases where the tenant could not be summoned, to leave a printed card bearing this message:

"The undersigned subordinate assessor of this district called here today, as required by law, to list the names and occupations of all residents over 21 years of age, whether members of the family or not. Because no person was present to furnish the names, please mail a list of them with their occupation to the undersigned."

Some of the field men explained they believed the residents in certain sections were reluctant to answer an assessor's summons in fear the house was to be searched or robbed.

Schad outlined the various classes of real estate and personal property that was assessable and instructed the field men on the procedure for new structures as well as the method of allowing for depreciation in old buildings.

COUNCILMEN TILT OVER FIREWORKS

GARLAND SEES BAN BEING IGNORED

Clark Replies With Order For Police to Arrest All Caught Firing Crackers

The police will not enforce the ordinance against the use of fireworks in Pittsburgh according to a prediction made by Councilman Robert Garland during yesterday's session of City Council.

"The police will not enforce it. They don't enforce anything," he said. "If they had enforced the laws against speeding and reckless driving we would not have had the accidents on the Boulevard of the Allies."

Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, however, holds an opposite opinion. He has prepared an order calling the entire police force into action against violators of the fireworks ordinance.

ARRESTS ORDERED

His order calls for the immediate arrest of every person over 16 caught setting off any fireworks, from crackers to sky rockets. Parents of offenders less than 16 will be required to produce them in Morals Court.

The fight to ban the sale of fireworks will be pressed, Garland said yesterday.

"It's too late to do anything this year, but now is the time to prepare for next. I hope we can persuade the county commissioners to pass a resolution requesting all the boroughs and townships to ban their sale. Then Pittsburgh can act."

FEAR DISCRIMINATION

One of the objections to the ordinance forbidding the sale of fireworks, which has been lying on the table in Council for months, is that it would discriminate against Pittsburgh merchants and be, in effect, restraint of trade here, Garland explained. He said that was brought out in an opinion given Council by the Law Department.

The situation would be different, he said, if the sale was prohibited throughout the county. He reiterated his opinion of the anomaly of the present regulations which permit the sale and forbid the use of fireworks.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question—Roland H. Spaulding says that the public school system must begin immediately to train workers for the aviation industries if the present rate of progress in aeronautics is to continue. Do you agree with this statement?

STANLEY HOHENSTEIN, salesman, Squirrel Hill—Aviation is certainly a mark of progress but I don't think it should be taught to children until they're at an age when they can understand it. They ought to be taught about it then because we're all going to be riding airplanes soon.

S. Hohenstein

MRS. JOHN W. FOWLER, saleswoman, Duquesne—I don't think the public schools are the right places to teach aviation. If a person wants to take it up himself let him arrange it himself, but it should be kept out of the schools.

Mrs. Fowler

JOSEPH KRAUTZ, salesman, Oakland—Aviation is a wonderful thing for the country and will make rapid progress. If it's taught in the right way it will be a great help when it becomes better developed.

Joseph Krautz

MISS DOROTHY MAINS, bookkeeper, Turtle Creek—No I don't think it should be taught in the public schools. People who want to take it up seriously can do so in later years but it would hardly be very beneficial in the schools.

Miss Mains

J. B. GILFILAN, bookkeeper, Westview—It isn't necessary to have aviation taught in the schools. American boys are sufficiently interested in it to learn about it themselves. The manual training courses they have now in the schools are far more beneficial than that would be.

J. B. Gilfilan

MRS. IRENE DOVEY, saleswoman, Beechview—I think it ought to be taught if there's going to be much more of it. As it progresses men will be greatly in demand who know about it in a thorough way.

Mrs. Dovey

SURVEY UNUSED PLANT SITES

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, through its engineers' council, in the interest of industrial expansion, will undertake a survey of the river fronts here to ascertain the condition and usefulness of unused industrial properties, A. S. Keller, manager, industry division of the chamber, said yesterday.

In the survey, facts pertinent to the condition of the properties, their height and whether flood stages of the streams would affect any plant operations, would be obtained.

On record in the Pittsburgh chamber is a file of 1,000 available industrial sites in this district, Keller said. While this new activity would in no wise conflict with that of other committees interested in industrial expansion, the data obtained in the survey of the river fronts would be made available to business men of the district.

BREW SEIZED IN CLUB RAID

Large quantities of home brew and mash were reported confiscated by prohibition agents in a raid last night on the Italian Mutual Beneficial Society, at Cecil, Washington County. Destroying the contraband, the agents arrested John Monti, 55, and Emil Phillips, 50.

In the home of Sam Busa, 63, at 4320 Graphic street, a 100-gallon still, 45 barrels of mash and 700 pounds of corn sugar were found, it was reported. NEW CARNEGIE FIRM TO OPEN 2 MINES

Work at Atlasburg and Burgettstown Expected To Make Jobs for 500

Two additional mines are to be opened within the next two weeks by the reorganized Carnegie Coal Corporation. The original company failed with John A. Bell, Carnegie banker, its president.

The mines are the Louise at Burgettstown and the Atlas at Atlasburg. Between 500 and 600 miners will be given employment, it was said. The reorganized company has been operating mines at McDonald and Cedar Grove for some time.

The mines formerly were owned by Bell's now defunct Carnegie Coal Company which was taken out of the hands of the receivers and reorganized some time ago as the Carnegie Coal Corporation.

The reorganization followed the receivers sale at which the bond holders bought the entire assets of the defunct company. The new concern, a Pennsylvania corporation, bought the Carnegie Coal Company's properties for $1,500,000 in cash and $6,000,000 in capital stock.

MILLINERS PRESENT NEWEST CREATIONS IN SMALL HATS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 2.—If you wear a small, chic hat during the day and a fascinatingly brimmed model at night, you are surely headed for millinery success. For despite the apparent popularity of the large hat, we find that the sleek small chapeau is the choice of women who have discovered the hidden meaning of the word "chic." The little hats shown just now are going very big, particularly the little hand knit jersey models that the clever Agnes does so well.

Ever so many smart women have ordered several of these caps in divers colors for both town and country wear, for they are comfortable, cool and good-looking in a nonchalant kind of way. A shining success in the millinery world, is of course, panamalac, and it is a straw that is as much liked for small models as for those of more imposing dimensions. And so you see that it is an easy and a pleasant season for making the most of one's good points and skillfully minimizing any defects. And that after all should be the function of a hat. It always has seemed strange to observers of the mode to watch women cheerfully choosing hats that should have no part in the be-kind-to-your-face movement to which more vendeuses and clients ought to subscribe.

WE ARE SHOWING two sketches of models that represents the last word in small hats of distinction and charm. The first is a creation by Margot Floury, who is building quite a following. The hat is built entirely of panamalac, cleverly combined with the same weave in white. The two tones of straw are also utilized to fashion the small tailored bow that trims the front of the toque. The full draping at the sides is very deftly done, for it is drawn back from the face even while softening the silhouette in a manner that is most becoming.

THE OTHER SKETCH depicts one of Agnes' hand-knit models. It is of fine wool in a bright royal blue. The soft brim turns back from the forehead over a matching velvet ribbon band, which ties in a bow at the nape of the neck.

Husband Builds Up Estate for Protection of Family Through a Living Trust . . .

WHEN a customer, whom we will call John Smith, first came to The Colonial Trust Company for advice, he was a young business man earning a comfortable living for his family and saving regularly . . . but insurance companies would not issue a policy on his life, and he was worried about the future of his family.

In that situation, a Trust Officer of The Colonial Trust Company advised him to create a Living Trust. The plan was to deposit some capital with The Colonial in trust for his children and to add to that deposit regularly. By the accumulation and investment of the income and by his regular deposits, the trust has greatly increased.

It was years ago that it was created. John Smith is still living. He has been able to watch the workings of the trust, and has thus been able to put The Colonial Trust Company to a real test. He has seen his plans materialize, and his worry for his children's future has entirely disappeared. He knows that ample provision has been made for each of them.

That is just a bare outline of an actual Living, or Voluntary Trust. Trusts of that nature can be created for almost any purpose, and frequently are, for charities, for churches, schools, dependent relatives, or friends. Would such a plan commend itself to you? Is it worth knowing more about? If you will mail the attached coupon, we will tell you how a Living Trust may be created to meet your special requirements. This will not obligate you.

Consult Your Attorney

YOUR own attorney should prepare any instrument under which The Colonial Trust Company is to serve you.

Having experience for many years, the Trust Officers of The Colonial Trust Company will be glad without charge to confer with your attorney on the business provisions of such instruments.

THE OFFICE WIFE

By FAITH BALDWIN

CHAPTER XXIV

A girl in Eaton's office. His secretary? That could only mean Anne!

He went directly to the agency and walked into Anne's office. He'd never been there before. But he brushed by the receptionist clerk with a mere "Miss Murdock's brother," and stood there gazing after him in bewilderment.

Anne was not in her office. She was with Eaton. He was standing, held a newspaper in his hand, and was saying:

"I'm so sorry, so sorry. Eaton, I shall be glad to see FORMER SHOWGIRL TAKES POISON—and read the name and description.

"Dolly Davis, Davis," he asked, sickened and incredulous.

Anne answered. Half of it. "Yes. Do you mind if I stand here? There was something horrible about."

"I wouldn't have happened," Eaton said.

"Oh, that's all," Anne told him with a sort of tired disgust. "And they didn't matter, after all. There's nothing about a husband here."

She shuddered, and Eaton put his hand on her shoulder. There was comfort for both of them in that contact, a sense of understanding and the quick upleaping warmth of a flame leaping.

He dropped his hand as if he had betrayed himself, said steadying his voice with an effort: "I'm sorry, too, dashed sorry." Then, looking at Anne's quivering mouth, he said inadequately: "So sorry that you should have been brought close to anything like this."

And then, wondered suddenly if, after all the restraint he had placed upon himself, had been unnecessary. Anne began, "Anne."

Anne Puzzled

But when she looked up at him with questioning, waiting eyes, he thought swiftly: "Not here!" He couldn't bear to tell her there. He'd go to see her, in her little flat he'd reach out his hungry arms and ask her.

But there was a step in the adjoining office, a man's step. Anne turned before Eaton could speak again and walked away. What had he been going to say? And so her eyes dim and her heart choking her, she walked directly into her brother's arms.

For Jim had been there at the half-open door, had listened shamelessly and had seen Eaton's hand on Anne's slim shoulder.

"Jimmy! What on earth! What's wrong? Mother—Kathleen—Dad?"

"No; don't get excited. They're all right. I want to talk to you, that's all. Can we go somewhere and be alone?"

"Jimmy, what is it?"

"This," he told her. "Eaton's wife is suing for divorce in Reno. Very quietly, see? But the papers have got wind of it, and of you."

"Of me?" She could hardly credit her ears. Eaton's wife ... divorce ... herself. "Of me?" she asked again incredulously.

"Yes. Oh, I know there's nothing in it. But you are his secretary; you are with him all day and sometimes part of the night; you've been away with him and his wife; you've visited them on Long Island. Can't you see what a slick case can be built up against you, Anne? And," he added, "you're so confounded good-looking!"

Jim's Advice

"But they can't print anything like that. It would ruin him—the publicity, it mustn't be. Jim, you've got to stop it!"

"Anne, look at me! You're thinking of him, not of yourself. Answer me one question. Are you in love with him?"

"Yes, Jimmy," she said, in a small clear voice.

"The scoundrel!" he said violently.

"No, no. He doesn't know I'm alive. I couldn't help it, Jimmy," she implored wildly. "He's ... he's so much the biggest thing that's ever come into my life. I never dreamed about him and his wife. Jimmy, you must stop the scandal; you must! You mustn't let it hurt him."

"Don't be a fool," he told her brusquely. "I'll scotch it, never mind that part. Resign from this job, and at once. Tell him you're sick and go home today and send in your letter."

"I can't. We're so busy. It would be disloyal. It isn't possible."

"He can worry along without you. Go home, I tell you. I'll see you tonight."

He rose and Anne rose, too.

After he had left her she sat there trying to think. Linda, a divorce, and herself somehow implicated.

Resign, Jim had told her. Leave him—leave him thinking her disloyal and ungrateful. For she couldn't tell him, she couldn't face the telling.

If she did tell him she knew him well enough to know what he would say. He'd tell her to stick to the job and to the devil with newspaper talk. Yet publicity was the one thing an advertising man couldn't afford.

She rose after a time and went back to the office and to Eaton, looking for her.

"Where did you disappear to? Why, what's wrong?" he ended instantly.

"My brother came. I've had bad news," she lied, yet after all was it not the truth? "If could you spare me?"

"Of course. Is there anything I can do?" he asked aware of tenderness through all his concern for her that the moment had passed that he would have to wait—a little longer.

"No, thank you. It may not be serious," she said and tried to smile.

"My car's outside," he told her. "Please use it."

Declines His Help

"Thank you, no. Jim's waiting for me."

"I'm so sorry. Please, if there is anything I can do to help, will you let me know? You promised once," he reminded her.

"It's all right," she said. She moved to the hatstand and took down her things. "Goodby," she said, and did not look at him.

But when she reached the door she turned and looked about the office. For the last time, for the last time. And her eyes met his with so tragic a glance that he took a hasty step forward. And he spoke her name again, urgently.

"Anne!"

Somehow she managed to smile again. "I'll be all right. I'm sorry," she said, "to leave you like this."

She closed the door softly. He stood there staring at it, remembering her eyes. She was in trouble. She was his friend. He loved her, loved her. * * * And he was letting her go like this—alone. He went back to his desk and sat there thinking.

Why hadn't she told him what the difficulty was? Couldn't she admit him to her confidence?

Anne went home. By some miracle Kathleen was out. She had the little apartment to herself. All the rest of that day she lay unstirring on her bed, trying to face her exile and her grief.

Jim came that night.

Letter of Resignation

"It's all right!" he told her at once, when, white and haggard, she met him at the door. "The thing's squashed flatter than a pancake. No, no one knows my relations to you except my chief. He's human enough, although you'd not think it. I told him frankly who you were. I said there was nothing in the story—just office gossip. I told him you weren't satisfied that you had given in your resignation some time ago and that you were engaged to be married."

She did not answer, but after he had gone she went to the desk and, with shaking hands, started her letter to Eaton.

"Dear Mr. Eaton," she began, "I'm so sorry to have to give you my resignation to take effect at once. There is illness in my family and ..."

Oh, but he'd find out. He'd know she lied!

"Dear Mr. Eaton," she began again. "I am forced to hand in my resignation, to take effect at once. I can give you no reason."

She stopped writing and put her head down on the desk. But her heart formed the phrases.

"Oh, my beloved," cried Anne's heart, "I am leaving you because it is better for us both, because I would only harm you if I stayed. I am leaving you because I love you."

Kathleen, coming back from the theater, found her there at the desk, her head on her arms, sleeping, with tear marks on her face and the letter paper sodden under her cheek.

Kathleen touched her sister on the shoulder. After a moment Anne's breath escaped her in a tired moan and she opened her eyes and stared blankly at the other girl.

Her eyes dropped to the desk. "What's happened?" Kathleen asked.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

By drinking milk, eating one to two eggs a day and taking orange juice regularly the dentist's bill can be cut down considerably. These foods supply tooth-building material. They are rich in vitamines that the digestive organs are grateful for.

There are women possessing such infinite and absorbing charm that much is forgiven them—untidy garments for instance and eccentricities of manner. They dominate even in a soiled kitchen frock. But if a woman is blessed with compelling personality why shouldn't she clothe her body beautifully and so increase her power of attraction? Society demands that a woman should not only be scrupulously neat but pictorial.

THE BIG HOUSE

Dapper Dandy said okay, an' that's the last word.

"We'll let them go through—maybe it's best after all."

"Come on, snap out of it—Dunk!"

Ruby was aggressive—insistent. She tore at him by the arms and looked into his sad, listless, chin-down face.

"Oh, so the skirt gave you the air, eh?" she said knowingly. Then: "Well, you've always got Ruby—you cheatin', good-lookin', crooked, twist-twisted fox."

Morgan looked into her liquid brown eyes. He was about to say something when he heard the doorbell jangle. They were in the small parlor just off the hall. They heard the landlady's voice like grinding brakes topping the gruff voices of men.

"We know he's in here," one insisted.

Four men walked in.

"Well, we got you, Morgan. We knew the Jennie'd come pussydoggin' to you sooner or later. Her trail is as intrikkit to pick up as a camel in a ,hone booth."

"You dirty—" began Ruby.

"Let me go!" screamed Ruby. "I'll tear your eye out!"

But one of the detectives held her fast. Morgan felt the cold bracelets on his wrists. He never flinched. He just tossed Ruby one look.

"Oh, Dunk, I never knew they was following me!" cried Ruby. "I swea, a dyin' oath—"

He ignored her. To the dicks he said:

"Well, what's the delay?"

"Don't ... no Houdini, or we'll lay you out," Morgan warned the detective who held him by the arm, a gun in his other hand.

Ruby was hysterical.

"Let me go, you lousy bulls! Why don't you leave a square guy alone—when he wants to go straight you won't let him. You blood-suckin' bedbugs—"

"Shut off that little cat," he ordered one of the men. "And you," he indicated another, "phone headquarters that we've nailed Morgan. We'll take no offsides with him, tell them I said so—we'll hand him right down there, trussed and tied."

"Uhu—you can't win," sneered Morgan.

"Dunk, ain't there something I can do?" pleaded Ruby.

"Much obliged—you've done enough!"

"But you don't blame me—you don't think—"

"No, you was trying to warn me."

"I was, I was. I swear it on me dead Irish mother's immortal soul—"

Morgan hesitated. Then:

"Yes, tell HER how it happened. Tell her my right name, everythin'—tell her to forget me. They'll give me four more years on my sentence and they'll start me with 60 days in the hole—I'll never beat the stir, now."

"Well, come on and quit that yowling," the detective ordered.

"I'll tell her, Dunk," called Ruby, as they pulled him away. The fourth detective remained with her on the doorstep. "I'll tell her what a right guy you are and how lucky she'll be to get you after you work off your stretch."

"Goodby, Ruby. I—I believe you."

"Goodby, Dunk—God look after you—"

Ruby's voice trailed off into a moan. The detective had to support her boneless figure. A small crowd had gathered and heads poked out of windows along the block. The landlady was wide-eyed with terror and stood in the doorway wringing her hands.

"He seemed like such a gentleman," she said.

"And," sobbed Ruby, "I love him."

LOVE'S REAWAKENING -:- Continuation of LOVES AWAKENINK

By ADELE GARRISON

I indulged my risibles in a sly little smile as Dicky stirred up the wood fire in his room. He had told me that when he had finished I should spill the beans about our little game cocks and that I probably would explode if I didn't. But I knew that he was even more anxious to hear the outcome of my disciplinary session with Junior and Roderick than I was to relate it.

Very careful was I, however, to let no hint of this knowledge escape me, and though I retailed the story with gusto I betrayed no recognition of my husband's eagerness to hear it. But when I reached the point where I had proposed that the two small boys fight out their quarrel if they could not settle it, Dicky pounded his knee and laughed until I seriously considered the desirability of throwing a glass of water over him as one does a victim of hysteria.

"To think I should have lived to see this day!" he choked at last. "My wife, the mother of me che-ild, a prize fight promoter! Where do you propose to hold the bout, old dear? And how much admission do you propose to charge? I warn you now that I am going to have a share of the gate receipts. Both contestants are relatives of mine so I get a cut both ways."

The demon of pettiness which lurks within me and which I have to fight strenuously, almost got the better of me at Dicky's raillery.

"I wish you'd ever," I began sulkily, but caught myself back with a mighty effort and invested the last two words "be serious" with a friendly smile.

"I am serious as a hanging judge," he retorted, answering the smile. "This sire means a lot to me. Who knows? We may be fostering a future Dempsey or Tunney in our midst. If we play our cards right I may be able to knock off work in a few years and devote myself to managing my son."

I did not answer him this time. I could not, for I was unable to tell from his raillery what his real opinion was upon the suggestion I had made for the settlement of the quarrel between Junior and Roderick. I wondered a bit drearily if he realized what the decision which so excited his mirth had cost me in lifelong prejudices and inhibitions laid aside.

But Dicky is sometimes as clairvoyant as Lillian and when I did not answer him he stooped suddenly and turned my face up to his.

"I thought so," he said with a complete change of tone. "My alleged humor isn't registering a little bit. Well, I can't blame you. 'Tis a poor thing but mine own' and you're perfectly right in ignoring it. But may I tell you, without any applesauce that I think you handed our young son and my nephew just the right dope. How did they act when you held it out to them?"

"They were distinctly hopeful." I said smiling and accepting his cue for forgetting his gibing. "But they were awfully dear afterward when I talked to them about Christmas time. I only just mentioned it at that, and it was their own suggestion that they shake hands. They also proposed to apologize to their grandmother without any suggestions from me whatever."

"Madge, the animal tamer!" Dicky said laughingly, but there was tenderness in his gibe and I thrilled to his voice. "I expected to have to sit up all night to see that they didn't wake and stage a miniature riot. You certainly are there, old dear, in capitals. But you have something on your mind still. What is it?"

"There are several things," I told him slowly. "Some concerning Junior and some Roderick. It—seemed—somehow tonight—that we—I—had been looking at Junior through a veil and not really seeing him. He's—he's growing up, Dicky. He's not — our baby-boy — any longer."

"Don't dearest!" I said steadily. "If you sympathize with me, I shall stage what Mary calls 'a Mammy song with soo accompaniment.' And I want to talk with you seriously."

"Shoot the works," he said, folding his arms.

"I'll begin with Roderick," I told him, and forthwith related my discovery that the boy had the creative urge, and described his emotional breakdown when I promised him some tools and a place to work.

"Heart of Gold!" he said tenderly, then as if remembering my warning, changed to a less emotional but sincere exclamation. "You bully scout! No wonder the kid fell for your line. But let's go on from here! What's my part in this? You have a plan. Let's hear it!"

BUCS RECALL ROOKIE LANG

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Maranville Is Marvel. Outlasts All Others.. Still Star in 19th Year.

French in Fine Stride. Robins Losing Ground. Ignoring of Fouls.

RABBIT LEADER IN MAJOR SERVICE

WHEN THE PHYSICAL marvels of the various branches of athletic sports are called up to be decorated, they'll all have to move over and make room for Rabbit Maranville. As far as major league baseball is concerned, he appears to be just about in a class of his own among the players of the present day. For durability and sustained top form on the front line of daily action, for going on and on in defiance of the passing years, for keeping at it with the zeal and dash of a rookie at an age when most diamond stars are gone and forgotten, he has surpassed all of his contemporaries by a margin too wide to admit of any comparison.

Rabbit Maranville.

If you didn't know, you'd never guess that the little bundle of fire and energy now shortstopping for the Braves at Forbes Field is the oldest regular player in point of continuous service at present active in either of the major leagues. But that's the distinction that belongs to Maranville. Almost 38, and 19 years in the big show, yet he's still in there every day with all the ardor and snap of his youth, knocking down baseballs around short, swinging fast double plays from second, punching line drives to the outfield, or tearing around the bases like a racehorse.

NONE OF THE others who came up with the Rabbit in 1912 is still playing regularly. Those who played with or against him in the sensational world series of 1914 are only memories. Scores who broke in afterward have run their courses and passed on.

But Maranville endures as a living challenge to the well-known brook. still a star among shortstops, still flaming and fighting and thinking every instant, still an example of hustle and competitive spirit that puts to shame many of the younger athletes appearing with him daily on the same lot. All this from a player who has outlived every team-mate and competitor through a stretch of 19 campaigns. Truly a marvel of lasting physical prowess, any way you take him.

THERE ARE A few players in the fast set older than the Rabbit, who will be 38 on November 11. These are topped by Jack Quinn, veteran spitball pitcher of the A's, who will be 45 next Saturday according to the record books, and who is said to have forgotten a few years at that.

The others are Urban Faber, of the White Sox, 41; Cy Williams, of the Phillies, 41; Clarence Mitchell, of the Giants, 40; Hank Gowdy, of the Braves, 39; Wally Schang, of the A's, 39; Eppa Rixey, of the Reds, 39; Adolfo Luque, of the Robins, 38, and Sam Rice, of the Senators, 38.

Jack Quinn.

ONLY TWO OF these older men have been in the big show continuously as long as Maranville, however, and neither works regularly. One is Rixey, a pitcher, and the other is Williams, now only a pinch-hitter and emergency outfielder. Maranville, like Rixey and Williams, entered in 1912, and has been there ever since, barring a short time spent with the Rochester International League club in 1927. Quinn came up as early as 1909, but did not become settled until 1918. Gowdy entered in 1910 but his service has not been continuous; Schang did not make his how until 1913; Faber did not become established until 1914; Rixey, not until 1915; Mitchell, not until 1916, and Luque not until 1918.

APART FROM WILLIAMS and Rixey, the only player who has been up as long as Maranville is Herb Pennock, 36, of the Yankees, but he is a pitcher working only at intervals. Eddie Collins antedates them all, of course, as he made his debut in 1906, but Eddie is no longer an active player.

The Rabbit has an edge on all of the other veterans in both service and age. George Sisler is 37 and did not start until 1915. Babe Ruth and Joe Judge are 36 and did not come up until 1914; Rube Bressler is 35 and came in the same year. Charley Jamieson is 37 and entered in 1915. Harry Heilmann is 36 and though tried in 1914 did not become a fixture until 1916; Rogers Hornsby and George Kelly are 34 and neither broke in until 1915.

SO THERE IS no question that Maranville is entitled to be ranked as the oldest player in point of service now active regularly in the majors. Up to date, he has been in 2,132 games, has scored 1,027 runs, made 2,128 hits and stolen 273 bases. He passed the 1,000 mark in runs last month.

And yet he's far from being done. Judging from the rate at which he is still going, without showing the slightest sign of a letdown, he may have a chance eventually to equal or surpass some of the great records for continuous service set by Ty Cobb, Honus Wagner, Cap Anson, Eddie Collins, Tris Speaker, Cy Young, Grover Alexander, Walter Johnson and other noted durables of the past.

Larry French.

IF GUS SUHR had not dropped Pie Traynor's throw and missed a chance to retire the Braves without a run in the seventh inning yesterday, Larry French might have pitched a second successive shutout. As it was, French did not bear down after that any more than was necessary to hold his game safe. Against the Phils and Braves in his last two games he pitched 18 straight runless innings before he was scored on. Larry has lost 10 games this year, but his total of seven victories means that he has won more games than Carl Hubbell, Eppa Rixey, Jumbo Elliott, Hub Pruett, Jake May, Bill Sherdel, Clarence Mitchell, Eddie Brandt, Lester Sweetland and some other left-handers for whom a big year was predicted in the spring.

THE ROBINS DO not look so much like pennant threats as they did when they started on their present Western swing. They have now lost four games in succession and five of their last six, and since invading the West they have won only four engagements out of 11 played.

The trip hasn't been a howling success for the Giants, either. They managed to topple the Cubs yesterday, but previously they had lost four games in a row and their record for the trip up to today showed only an even break in 14 contests. New York supporters are pleased to consider the Giants still in the pennant fight, but while counting the Pirates out of it, but a look at the standing discloses that the Bucs have lost only two games more than the McGrawites, which wouldn't be a wide difference in the closing stages of the season, much less at the beginning of July.

THE NEW YORK Boxing Commission aims to eliminate fouling by legalizing it in a sense—by giving the fighters in a bout permission to do as they please to each other, putting it up to them to wear

Earl Mastro Wins Over Bud Taylor

DETROIT, July 2.—(AP)—Earl Mastro, Chicago featherweight, won a referee's decision over Bud Taylor, of Terre Haute, Ind., in a 10-round bout at the Michigan State Fair grounds last night. Mastro weighed 124, Taylor 125.

Mastro's speedy two-fisted attack had Taylor puzzled throughout most of the rounds and the Chicago youngster was able to keep out of the way of most of Taylor's powerful swings. There were no knockdowns.

HOME FOLKS GREET BOBBY IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, July 2 (AP)—By train and by airplane up from the land where the golfers grow have come 250 beaming Georgians to see Atlanta's most prominent citizen get a Broadway welcome.

Bobby Jones.

On the excursion steamer Mandalay they'll go down the bay today and watch Robert Tyre Jones Jr. British amateur and open golf champion escorted from the liner Europa aboard New York City's welcoming yacht, the Macom.

Up "the trail of glory" where the ticker tape flies from the Battery to the city hall, they will follow him to stand cheering in the background while Mayor James J. Walker tells him that New York is proud of him, too.

DINNER IN EVENING

And then after New York gets through with him they'll take young Bobby over to the Hotel Vanderbilt in the evening for the kind of welcome-home dinner that only one's home folks know how to give.

"Tell him I can whistle now."

MAYOR HEADS PARTY

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale of Atlanta, officially headed the delegation on "the Bobby Jones Special" but the real boss was a gentleman named Robert P. Jones, the champion's father. Mrs. Jones arrived on another train late this afternoon.

Maj. John S. Cohen, president and editor of the Atlanta "Journal," head of the Atlanta welcoming committee, Dr. L. M. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech; R. J. Spiller, executive vice president of the Atlanta baseball club, of which Bobby Jones is an officer, and several directors of the First National Bank of Atlanta also were aboard.

While he was in Europe Bobby Jones was elected a director of the First National Bank of Atlanta, one of the biggest banks in the South. He is its youngest director.

STOGIES TEST NIGHT GAME

FAIRMONT, W. Va., July 2—The Wheeling club, of the Middle Atlantic League, is scheduled to start night baseball on its home field about the middle of this month, and fans in this section are eager to get a glimpse at baseball by night. Quite a large delegation of fans probably will go from here for the first night contest in the Ohio County city. If the Wheeling venture is a success, it is quite probable that night baseball may become more or less general over the Middle Atlantic League circuit next season, if the league survives this year.

There might be one drawback to night baseball in this section. After the middle of August the nights get quite chilly and the same condition prevails early in the season. The night game might ruin a few pitching arms and also make it pretty tough for the veteran hurlers who need hot weather.

BOWL BATTLES ON TONIGHT

Sports Editor.

The Meyers Brothers' jinx still pursues them.

If it isn't one thing it's another. Last night they had to call off this week's boxing show in their Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, for the second time in as many nights, due to rain that descended after the dinner hour. The night before it was off because they had to make a switch in the main bout attraction and couldn't put it through in time.

Jackie Rodgers

A third attempt to stage the show will be made tonight. The principals in the main bout are Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, and Johnny McCoy, of Buffalo, subbing for Johnny Datto, of Cleveland, who was stricken ill on Sunday and had to withdraw.

Rodgers, 125¼ pounds and McCoy 123. Harry Williams, of the North Side, 174¾, and Harry Harris, of Bellaire, O., 165½, for the eight-round semi-final; Eddie Speaks, of Louisville, 132, and Jack DeNeri, of the North Side, 129, for the second bout, and Tony Marino, of Duquesne, 119¼, and Young Ketchel, of Steubenville, O., 113, for the opener.

Between Rounds

Buck McTiernan is working hard for his return battle with Farmer Joe Cooper at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night. He wants to convince the local fans that on the Farmer's merits and that the decision earned over him by the latter at Motor Square Garden during the indoor season was a fluke.

The Andy Andrejack-Dude Eaton show at Kane, Liverpool, O., also was postponed from last night until tonight on account of rain.

Interest is keen in the fighting card arranged for Hickey Park, Millvale, tomorrow night, especially insofar as the two 10-round bouts making up the double windup part of the bill are concerned. They are between middleweights. Young Bettel meets Jackie Watson and Mickey Bolic, Bud Logan, Tiger Jordan, Willie Ross, Young Nasty and Irish Dave Mc-Connell take on German Hans Roberts in the six round preliminaries.

The Hickey Park management has issued [illegible] Johnny White, Negro pilot of Erie who recently started in defeating Johnny Choolo, of Johnstown, at the Morris Bowl in Monessen, O., tonight. Midget Mike Dilbeck, of Lorain, will be in Erie next Thursday night of next week.

Quincy Jones, Akron Negro, hoxes Harry Mason, of England, at the Lawrence Rink, Akron, O., tomorrow night. Pete Peterson, of Canton, and Jack Shaffer, of Cleveland, tick the main bout of a show at Massillon, O., next Monday night, which will be featured by appearance of Primo Carnera with his sparring partners.

Max Greenman, local junior lightweight who is hoxing out of Detroit, meets Marty Simon, of Detroit, in a six-round preliminary to the Tony Canzoneri-Ray Miller bout at Navin Field, Detroit, July 23. Jack Kathish, local welterweight, also is hoxing around Detroit.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Their hospital list on the mend, the Pirates today found further comfort in the announcement that Martin Parsons Lang, southpaw pitcher of the New Haven club of the Eastern League, was on his way to join the local team. Lang was recalled yesterday by the Pittsburgh owners.

The young southpaw came from Wichita, of the Western League, to the Buccos. He made the spring training trip with the Bucs and later was farmed out to Baltimore of the International League. Eventually he was placed under option with New Haven. The Pirate management recently decided it would like to have the pitcher returned and negotiations were begun which were completed yesterday.

Lang is 5 feet 11 inches in height and he weighs about 170. He is only 22 but the latest member of the club has a seasoned manner about him that is impressive. He may see some early action in view of the curtailed slab staff which Manager Ens is now directing.

BRAME TO HURL

Ervin Brame will take on the Braves this afternoon in the third game of the series. He is likely to be opposed by Harry Seibold, ace of the Tribal staff.

Lloyd Waner was back in action for a couple of rounds yesterday as the Pirates defeated the Braves 8 to 3. Lloyd, however, was not inserted in the lineup until the fight was nearly over, Boss Ens is nursing along the little star in such a manner as to shape him for the grind of playing full ball games.

Larry French made the Braves jump through after his mates had given him a sizeable lead early. Eddie Brandt opposed the Buccos, the home batters reaching the enemy leafhander at times when hits meant runs.

Hemsley Outruns Gowdy in Race to First

OL' HANK AIN'T AS YOUNG AS HE USED TO BE

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, July 2.—I see Babe Ruth is going to open up a haberdashery shop on Broadway in the fall. I suppose the Bambino will specialize in socks and belts. He ought to be a big success at that business. Imagine all the goods he could dispose of if he affixes the original Babe Ruth autograph on every pair of running pants right above the seam. And with a full line of felts and derbies in stock can't you see the Babe encouraging that mob of his in the right field bleachers to smash each others straw hats on September 15? Personally I will deliver all my haberdashery trade to the Babe. I buy two rubber collars a year.

TOLAN BREAKS RECORD FOR 100 METERS

Competing in the Dominion Day track and field meet before 15,000 persons, Tolan, official holder of the world's 100-yard dash record, and George Simpson, of Ohio State, both showed their heels to Williams.

Tolan's time of 10 1-5 seconds was one fifth second better than the world's mark which he shares with Charlie Paddock, former University of Southern California athlete.

The Michigan Negro broke the tape three feet ahead of Simpson, and the Ohio State flash with a mighty burst of speed in the last 20 yards and passed Williams to beat the Vancouver boy by a foot.

Track officials said Tolan's time was remarkable because he ran uphill, the finish mark being three inches higher than the starting point.

RACE CHAMP HERE, TELLS OF CLIMB TO TOP

BILLY ARNOLD RECALLS BIG THRILLS

By CARL W. SHATTO

Three years ago a lad of 20 hitchhiked and almost came here from Chicago to compete in a dirt track automobile race at New Kensington. After eating cost for a little more than an hour he collected first money in the event and left the city with slightly better shoes than when he came.

This morning this same Chicago lad arrived back in Pittsburgh but this time he came as the conquering hero for the unknown of three years ago now is the very well known Billy Arnold, newest member of the racing fraternity to achieve the remarkable feat of winning the 500-mile Indianapolis and 200-mile Altoona auto race classics in a single season.

"When I was here three years ago," he said, "anyone could have bought me for 15 cents, but today ——" Billy finished the sentence with a shrug but his manner indicated that the price had mounted considerably.

BIGGEST THRILL MAY 30

Arnold says he experienced the biggest thrill of his auto racing career last May 30 when he was flagged down the dark horse winner at Indianapolis.

During his eight years of racing—he entered his first race at the tender age of 15—Billy has been in more than a score of accidents. Of his mishaps Billy says he experienced his most uncomfortable moment a few years ago when he smashing through a board fence at Watterloo, Iowa.

"There was a turn there, and I simply forgot to turn," is the way he explains it. "I was so badly battered up that I had to quit the game for six months. That was my most serious accident."

"Harts gave me a great car to drive, and without a car capable of winning no driver can cash in on his skill as a pilot. And Gean," Billy says, "is one of the best in the business at keeping a car in winning condition. He helped De Palma, Souders, Keech and Lockhart win championships at Indianapolis before he hooked up with me."

OUT TO CLINCH TITLE

Arnold is to drive the Sealfast Special with which he won at Indianapolis and Altoona in the race at Bridgeville. Shorty Cantlon, Detroit star, who still has a chance to beat him out for the national title, also is to race here Friday, and Billy is not going to take any chance of being beaten out for the championship. After the race here, Billy plans to drive a Dusenberg, which he purchased this week.

Arnold's many accidents have left him unmarked, and the mental and physical anguish he has experienced in his many grinds is not reflected in his face. His record would indicate that he is more than 23. His "baby face" makes him appear to be a lad of 16.

Billy says that although he now has a modest fortune, he plans to continue racing indefinitely.

BOY TRAINER OF HOUNDS SUCCESS

The success of Rough Alice Rose and Monty Meadows attracted much comment among the fans and trainers at New Kensington. Upon investigation it was found that little Benny was largely the reason.

A visitor to the kennel found Rough Alice Rose asleep on a cot with a pillow under her head. Asked why Alice was given a bed, Benny explained:

"She's in a cup race tonight and I want to win that cup. We were crowded for room and have to put two dogs in a crate. If she stayed in the crate this afternoon she would not be able to rest comfortably, so I let her have my bed so she will be on edge for her best race tonight."

Rough Alice Rose won the cup despite the fact that Orville Jackson placed another dog in the race. Little Benny stood outside the gates to wait for Jackson to bring in Rough Alice Rose. Benny took the lead in one hand and the cup in the other.

"I told you she'd win that cup," Benny explained triumphantly as he proceeded to "cool out" his pet.

protectors that really will protect, in the hope that they'll become sick of that kind of stuff that clean going will ensue as a result of a mutual desire for it on the part of the principals.

It's a dangerous step in one respect, for in providing no penalty for a foul except that the boxer fouled has the right to foul back, it invites and encourages unfair fighters to go ahead and practice all the unsportsmanlike and unscrupulous methods known to their kind. It opens the way for dirty bouts and alley fights.

Johnny Kilbane.

THE COMMISSIONERS PROBABLY got the idea from the way Johnny Kilbane stopped the foul practices of an opponent back in 1921. Kilbane was meeting Danny Frush at the Cleveland ball park, and in the very first round Frush drove a left hook to foul territory. Did Kilbane fall to the canvas, make faces and writhe, and try to get the decision on a foul? He did not. He grabbed Frush, fell into a clinch and whispered into his ear: "So that's the kind of a fight it's gonna be, eh? Well, it's all right with me." Whereupon Kilbane raised one of his knees and rammed it into Frush's groin. Everybody saw it and Kilbane did not deny it. Frush went down and began to do the writhing act. But the referee, Walter C. Kelly, let him writhe. He neither counted over Frush nor disqualified Kilbane. Instead he stepped to the edge of the ring and said to the crowd: "I'm not going to let this fight end in a fluke. You came to see a fight and you are going to see one." After two minutes the bout was resumed, and from then until Kilbane won by a technical knockout in the seventh round, both fighters kept their punches high and fair.

Huge Concerns Not Feared By Public Today

By B. C. FORBES

IN THE DAYS when our anti-trust laws were passed most people regarded big corporations very differently from now. Today our very largest enterprises are among the most respected in the land.

You don't hear militant public clamor against General Motors, Standard Oil, General Electric, American Telephone and Telegraph, United States Steel Corporation, Anaconda, Allied Chemical and Dye, American or Continental Can, Corn Products Refining, General Foods Corporation, Borden's, Bethlehem Steel or Auburn organizations.

In various industries it is contended that conditions better for everybody could be brought about were our trust laws brought into line with modern thought, modern ideas, modern ideals.

TAKE THE OIL industry. In yesterday's column Kenneth R. Kingsbury, president of Standard Oil of California, described the reasonably successful efforts of producers to keep output from continuing to run to gross excesses disastrous to the whole country. He emphasized that, unhappily, the refining and distributing were still running riot, the cost of distributing alone according to the federal oil conservation board, at times even involving an expense equal to the cost of production and refining.

Until these other branches of the industry can be corrected, the efforts of the producers cannot be genuinely successful.

MR. KINGSBURY after making the statements quoted yesterday said:

"If we were not so hemmed in by restrictive laws, I think much could be accomplished for conservation in this second and equally important step, and it could be accomplished no hardship, while imposing no hardship whatever on the public, which would insure a prolongation of the supply of this wasting commodity, petroleum, and at the same time afford a fair and reasonable profit to the petroleum industry.

"NOW THAT OUR industry has fairly well placed its house in order in so far as the production of crude is related to the consumption is concerned, I hope some way may be found to bring about stable and orderly refining and marketing. Other important industries in the country, according to information I have, indicate that they are suffering as the petroleum industry is, because of demoralized manufacturing and marketing conditions respecting their products.

"The restrictive laws which prevent this are old, having been passed many years ago when conditions in this country were on a one million dollar basis, while today they are on a one billion or more dollar basis.

"I AM SO IMPRESSED with the necessity of accomplishing orderly refining and marketing, if real conservation is to be had, that I hardly know where to stop when I get started on the subject.

"It seems almost hopeless to expect modification of our laws to permit reasonable agreements within any one industry.

"Six or seven years ago when we started in the effort to bring production of crude oil in balance with consumption of crude oil, as I look back on it, it seemed almost as hopeless as this other proposition does now.

"I don't mean to infer that nothing has been done by the petroleum industry in an effort to stabilize this second step, because only within the last year the Federal Trade Commission promulgated a code of marketing rules and practices for the petroleum industry, which has helped greatly to promote orderly marketing.

"If it were not for the fact that it appears that the petroleum industry will be threatened for a number of years with an oversupply of crude oil, I am inclined to think that I would side with those who feel that we should let nature take its course, but that course now appears to be so destructive of the principles of true conservation that in the public interest, as well as that of the industry itself, every effort should be made to bring about a more orderly condition in the refining and marketing end."

Apart from every other consideration, our oil resources are so vital that it is infinitely important that the government do everything possible to co-operate with the industry to stop the criminal waste which has been so flagrant for several years.

N. Y. Reserve Bank Cuts Buying Rate

NEW YORK, July 2.—The New York Federal Reserve Bank has reduced its open market bill buying rate to 1⅞ per cent on maturities up to 45 days. The previous rate was 2 per cent for maturities up to 90 days. The rate for maturities from 46 to 90 days remains at 2 per cent.

BOSTON, July 2.—The Federal Reserve Bank of Boston has reduced its acceptance buying rate for one to 45 days to 1⅞ from 2 per cent. Other rates remain at 2 per cent for 46 to 90 days; 2⅛ per cent for 91 to 120 days, and 2⅜ per cent for 121 to 180 days.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 2.—The bond market maintained a firm trend today with best grade corporation issues reaping the most benefit. The rest of the list performed indifferently and as trading dwindled it appeared that the listed market might close the short week tomorrow with little to its credit in the way of constructive improvement.

Contracts Awarded 18% Under Year Ago

NEW YORK, July 2.—Total contract awards for building and engineering construction during the first five months of this year were 18 per cent smaller than in the like period last year, Standard Statistics Company says in a current survey. The decline may be attributed practically in its entirety to the slump in the housing demand, the survey says, as declines in commercial and industrial construction are about offset by expanded activities in public works and utilities and other fields of a semi-public nature.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 2—With unofficial monthly domestic wheat crop estimates averaging 10,000,000 bushels more than similar estimates a month ago, wheat values underwent early downturns today. The wheat market was likewise affected bearishly by Australian reports of needed rains. Opening at ½-¾c decline, wheat showed additional setbacks later. Corn and oats were also easier, with corn starting unchanged to 1¼c off, but subsequently recovering. Provisions tended to advance.

Pipe Line Brings in Large Producer

PHILADELPHIA, July 2—Word has been received from Shreveport, La., that the natural gas well brought in the latter part of last week by Shreveport-Eldorado Pipe Line Company is one of the largest natural gas wells in the country, being authentically gauged at 38,500,000 cubic feet daily.

It is said to be the only well of its size on close to a large city. The well is on the Bellevue tract and only 11 miles north of Shreveport.

Federal Reserve Reports Retail Sales Gain In New York

The latest Federal Reserve figures show that department store sales are holding up surprisingly well in view of the general business recession, and the lower prices of commodities. Sales throughout the country in May were only 2 per cent below last year, and sales in the New York district showed a gain of 5 per cent over May last year. A number of the most important companies which indirectly reflect their operations showed New York

One kind of speculative buying that has been accelerated by the drop in money rates and shrinkage of values of good securities is buying for yield. With some gilt edged railroad and industrial stocks yielding between 6 per cent and 7 per cent there is a big differential between those figures and call and time money rates. The speculator through his broker might borrow money at 3½ per cent to 4 per cent, buy stocks yielding 6 per cent to 7 per cent and at the end of the year would have a profit even if the stocks purchased showed no change at all. If the stocks purchased on borrowed money advanced, that would mean more luck. But if they happened to go the other way the buyer would be out of luck. Last year carrying charges on stocks bought on margin were several per cent in excess of dividend yield.

Many believe the industrial earnings for the third quarter will be more unfavorable than in the second quarter, owing principally to smaller production and lower prices. Predictions of this kind may be true, but if earnings in the fourth quarter show an improvement over the third quarter the market may ignore the third and go up on what is expected in the last quarter.

The money market had to withstand the effects of another rather heavy call during the first three hours yesterday. Withdrawals in this period were estimated to have run to about $90,000,000. This time, however, the depletion of available funds did not find reflection in an advance in the call money rate, the charge for day loans ruling at the 2½ per cent renewal figure. The Reserve banks here and at Boston cut their buying rates on bills by ½, of 1 per cent, bringing the rate down to 1½ per cent on 90-day rates, which followers of the money situation believe will mark the bottom of the decline in interest rates and that firmer tendencies will be found ahead.

Among the railway shares Atchison extended its recovery from the recent lows in a rather spectacular manner yesterday. At top levels the stock was up more than 8 points net following a correspondingly sharp advance on Monday. Presently the stock is ruling some 20 points above the low of 194 touched last week. Atchison is one of the roads whose management has been moving to offset the shrinkage in business of the system by bringing widespread economies into play. This is in line with the statement of policy by the head of the road made some weeks ago. It should reflect in operating statements over the balance of the year.

The general run of firms handling straight commission business are in exceptionally strong position, if the condition of the average firm of that character can be judged by the positions of several of the largest. It appears that these firms are presently carrying less stock than at any time since last November. Correspondingly customers cash balances are large and represent considerable potential buying power once traders are convinced that the process of liquidation has been completed. What little business has been done recently is said to have been chiefly of an investment character where customers have been picking up stocks on what they believe favorable opportunities and taking them out of the market.

Glass Companies Consider Merger

NEW YORK, July 2—Negotiations between the American Plate Glass Corporation and the Indestructo Glass Corporation for Indestructo to take over the assets of American are reported nearing completion. It was said sponsors of each company will give the new company, to be called the Indestructo Glass Corporation, an additional $1,000,000 working capital which will provide for the installation of new machinery to make a new processed thin plate glass.

Fuel Issues Hold Steady As Industrial Section List Shows Small Losses

Stocks continued to fluctuate within narrow limits on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Fuel issues were steady to firm but the general industrial list was inclined to heaviness.

Volume of trading was light in all sections. Later that which has been making the market for the past month, held close to yesterday's levels showing a fractional rise. The stocks after the opening Silvertown Oil advanced a large fraction on the opening on news that the company had brought in a well in Gray County, Texas. Later it sold off selling down to the final loss of 1½, where it met supporting orders.

In the specialty group prices were lower but there was no outstanding personal interest. Liberty Iron backed down a point at the start, but later rallied 2 points on reports of sales increases in May and June. Aluminum Goods was off a point after scoring a fractional gain yesterday.

Pittsburgh Steel Net To Show Decline

BY GEORGE H. SNYDER

DECLINING DEMAND and reduced prices for steel ... and seamless tubing are responsible for the reduced net profit ... the Pittsburgh Steel Company will report for its fiscal ... that ended June 30, 1930.

Sales and earnings were higher than last quarter ... ended September 30, 1929, the first of the fiscal year ... shortly after the depression in business activity started. ... this quarter net profit was $1,028,124 or $3.45 a share on 203,... Q shares of common stock. This compared with $980,822 ... $3.86 a share in the corresponding months of 1929.

Profits in the next two quarters were sharply reduced as ... lower prices became effective and sales began to reflect the general state of business. In the three months ended December 31 net profit was $108,234 or $1.03 a share on $10,475,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock of $100 par value. In the quarter ended March 31 net profit was $17,783 or $1.67 a share on the preferred stock.

Last Quarter Improved

EARNINGS IN THE QUARTER ended June 30 were ... better than in the two preceding periods but they continue ... below the rate of last year.

As a result of the depression starting last fall the company's profit for the nine months ended March 31, 1930, was reduced to $1,324,141 or $3.12 a share on the common stock, ... compared with $3,086,932 or $9.96 a share in the corresponding period a year ago.

Operations, the company's earnings for the last fiscal year ... were far below those of the year ended June 30, 1929, when net profit amounted to $4,535,437 or $15 a share on the ... common stock.

Sells to Motor Industry

PITTSBURGH STEEL sells a large part of its product ... seamless tubing, to the oil and automobile industries. Both of these classes of customers have been working at a reduced rate for the past year.

The demand for wire, the company's other principal finished product, has also been small.

Pipe prices have declined from $5 to $7 a ton since last fall and cutting has also taken place in quotations on wire and nails. The company sells a part of its output of steel in a semi-finished state. The price of this has also been reduced but not to such a marked extent as the finished products.

Fully Integrated Producer

THE COMPANY'S PROPERTIES enable it to carry out all phases of its production from the mining of ore and coal to the manufacture of finished products. The steel plants are located on the Monongahela River near Monessen. At present 10 of the company's 12 open hearth furnaces are in operation.

Funded debt is small, amounting to $10,223,000 against physical properties carried at $55,594,331 at the close of the 1929 fiscal year. The current financial position is strong.

In recent years the company has been expanding the market for its wire products by the development of specialties such as Steeltex, used in the building industry.

Grants Extension On B. & O. Order

WASHINGTON, July 2. The Interstate Commerce Commission has granted the request of Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for six months' time extension of the period expiring July 13 in which it was ordered to divest its majority stock interest in the Western Maryland Railroad.

Will Vote on Sale To Ohio Oil Company

The Transcontinental Oil Company stockholders will vote at a special meeting August 14 on the proposal to sell the company's assets to Ohio Oil Company in exchange for stock. If the sale is approved stockholders will vote August 15 on a resolution to dissolve the company.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Arletta,
I love her better
Arletta
I'm gonna get her
Some sweetest day!"

"Ye gods, what rot!" growled Colonel Gaffney, as he stood at the library window and looked out on the terrace.

"O-o-oh Gus, how awfully clever!" cried Arletta Swaine, as she sat on the terrace beside Gus Emerson while he strummed away on one of those modern double headed banjos and improvised for the benefit of his lady fair.

"No foolin'. I mean it," said Gus.

"He's got his little curly head full of a musical comedy future and such stuff as that," growled the grouchy colonel.

Gus—Augustus Throckmorton—Emerson admitted that he had made it up impromptu.

"Honey, you inspire me to anything with you. I would write the song-hit kids sing all year."

Col. Gaffney listened impatiently for the reply. He felt that he had every right to listen. Aside from being the uncle of Arletta he was her legal guardian. Not only did he feel responsible for the handling of the considerable fortune left her by her mother, who had been the colonel's sister, but he felt responsible for the perpetuation of happiness and welfare of Arletta.

She was 19.

She could, if she wished, ask for another guardian. She knew that much about such things. Little Lord Gaffney to all the people of the world if it pleased him, was perfectly swell, Arletta.

Only she wished he wouldn't be so old-fashioned about her young men. He seemed to think that all young men should sing and play and croon and whoopee to the moon, that was utterly worthless. His idea of a "prominent young man" was a chap who played golf all day in and day out and considered a weekly dance at midnight to be sufficient finality and play for any lady person.

Colonel Listens

At any rate the Colonel listened. This ukulele-pusher with the inferior banjo had just told Arletta that with her [illegible] she would become a celebrity—in a year. What would Arletta say to such rot as that?

"Why Gus, you're a celebrity right now—you've had two song plugs published already," was what she said.

The Colonel felt better. He went back to his legal and book. Arletta was just amusing herself, he felt sure of that although how any living person could be amused at the antics of a banjo-playing idiot of song-making age was more than he could understand.

Gus strummed out his idea of an air he was going to call "Monday Morning Blues" and of course Arletta went into raptures over it. Then they got into his roadster and drove to the village for an orgy at the corner drug store.

"Honey, I'm wild about you," said Gus.

"You do say the sweetest things," declared Arletta.

Now this isn't intended to be funny or satirical. When someone you love says something to the effect that he loves you of course it sounds like the sweetest thing.

"What I want to do is to get over a couple of trial hits and then, instead of royalties, I'll publish my own stuff. Irving Berlin does, why shouldn't I?"

"No reason at all, Gus—you've as much right to do it as he. I'm sure you'll make a fortune."

"I've got to make a fortune because I'm going to marry you," he whispered.

"Oh, honey—don't be too long about it," Arletta answered and they went into what is known as modern petting.

"Wouldn't your father stake you to a little publishing business?" she finally asked.

"Nope, he's O.K. and my dad, but he's got a silly notion I ought to be financier—and you know that all I want in the world is you—and my music."

"You put me first."

"Always—I'd even give up music for you."

"You won't have to. I just know we'll be happy and rich a couple hits and—"

After this clinch Gus finished the sentence.

New Melody

"Wedding bells," he said.

Modern youngsters to be true, but not so modern that they omitted wedding bells from their plans.

Gus had to leave after a while.

He went home and rushed to his rooms to set down a brand new idea that came to him on the way—"Clouds Under Foot" he called it.

The colonel came in and caught Arletta arranging the photograph and stepping off to admire it.

He came forward, adjusted his glasses and regarded it.

"Ah," he said, "the newest young man of the hour, and I don't mind telling you, my dear child, that I won't be the least downcast if this hour of this young man doesn't last over 45 minutes!"

"Why, Un-n-n-ncle To-o-o-o-dddd!" said Arletta.

"He's my young man of the hour—he is my young man of all time—we're going to be married—"

"What—"

"I won't swap Gus for all the others on earth and when—"

Dinner was announced forthwith.

Clouds Under-foot happened to be quite a hit.

Arletta and Gus seemed more and more in love all this time.

And so when Arletta told her uncle that Mr. Emerson was coming to see him about something important, he asked what it was. Just another specimen of modern youth, Mr. Emerson might be.

Oh, don't be funny, please. This is serious. You know Mr. Emerson is the great composer of the song-hit that he does words and music.

Oh! [illegible] the hit of thumping [illegible] The Colonel's [illegible] and [illegible] in place of [illegible]

Arletta directed into the library that afternoon. He was smiling. He was self-assured and he was happy.

I suppose Arletta told you [illegible]

She said we were to humor me with a visit. I surmised that it was about her. To save time, [illegible] had any idea of marrying [illegible] that idea at all is quite out of the question.

But what's the matter with me?

Arletta Cries

God knows I don't want Arletta to marry you. I want both of them to marry you. A really [illegible] song writer and as for [illegible] background—

Mr. Emerson is first vice-president and chairman of the board of directors. "Look here, old Stuffed Shirt. I see you are going to be stubborn about this. We're serious."

Col. Gaffney moved over to the door and held it open.

Gus walked out.

"If Uncle says 'no,' " said Arletta, "then that's the end of it." And she sobbed a little.

It took [illegible] some more, but the Colonel was satisfied and a little pleased.

Gus reached into his hat and got out his ukulele-banjo. He strummed a few bits and broke into an impromptu song.

It's very plain to see
That I can't marry you-oo-oo!
And you can't marry me
So that means that we are through-u-u-u-gh!

Gus drove away saddened over Arletta and the cruel fate that had parted them, but enthused over the improvised stuff. Already he had a swell title.

And That's the End of Everything.

But returns were slow. And That's the End of Everything seemed to be literally true financially. It was a flop. Four others were flops. He wasn't getting anywhere.

Col. Gaffney got detectives and others on the jump.

He personally hunted up Gus Emerson. Gus was working on a new one. They've Stolen Her Away.

Damn you! It was your fault. If you'd let me marry her, he said to the colonel.

It's bad enough as it is without your writing drivel about it, the colonel growled at him.

But he wondered as he went out if it wouldn't have been better to have let Arletta marry the young idiot. She would have tired of him, he figured, and then divorce would have been simple.

Finally the whole case was brought up again when it became known that the guardian, Col. Gaffney, was offering $10,000 for the safe return of his niece.

Gus Rewarded

They've Stolen Her Away, by Gus Emerson, was another flop.

Parker Wentworth, noted lawyer and fellow club member with Col. Gaffney, went to the colonel one day in a purely professional manner.

I have a client who, I am convinced, can return your missing niece unharmed. He wants assurance of the $10,000 reward, he said.

Bring him along with my niece, or take me to where she is and I'll pay spot cash, the Colonel cried excitedly.

I will inform my client—

For God's sake drop the professional attitude, Parker. Bring Arletta back to me unharmed, the Colonel begged.

The next evening Parker Wentworth called on the Colonel. Arletta was with him. Also Gus Emerson.

The Colonel handed the $10,000 to Gus.

Tell me how you found her and then get out, he said.

I found her waiting for me at the Little Church Around the Corner seven weeks ago—we were married then, said Gus.

And he's written six wonderful song hits. Uncle Ted only he waited until he could afford to publish them—now he can, and we are so happy, Arletta cried.

Thanks to your uncle's generous reward, said Gus.

STEIN SONG FOR A NIGHT CLUB HOSTESS

Working in the night club, working wild and free,
Kidding soggy chumps and such from nine o'clock to three,
Meeting up with gangsters, college boys and mugs,
Babbits in from Keokuk, wealthy bums and thugs,
Dancing with the playboys on a crowded floor,
Hearing all the wisecracks that you've heard before,
Rings upon my fingers and rings beneath my eyes,
Rings from overwork, I guess, and rings from sloppy guys,
Though my head is splitting, and my puppies ache
I must keep pretending everything is jake.
I would like to end it all! (Please excuse a tear . . .)
But I can't afford to quit for another year.
I must make four payments—sixty grand in all—
On a new apartment house I'm building in the Fall.

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Every Answer Is Rendered with Extreme Care and Guaranteed as to Quality and Quantity.

Q.—The way you are snapping at folks is disgraceful. You will never make friends so long as you are irascible and always ready to believe the worst of anybody asking a perfectly decent question. What ails you, anyway?

One-Who-Is-Disgusted.

Ans.—I feel dull, languid, low-spirited, lifeless and indescribably miserable, both physically and mentally. I experience a sense of fullness or bloating after eating, and of "goneness" or emptiness of stomach before eating. I have a bad taste in the mouth, irregular appetite, dizziness, frequent headaches, blurred eyesight, "floating specks" before the eyes, nervous prostration and exhaustion, irritability of temper, hot flushes, alternating with chilly sensations, sharp, biting, transient pains here and there, cold feet, drowsiness after meals, wakefulness, and disturbed and unrefreshing sleep, constant, indescribable feeling of dread, and of impending calamity. But if "One Who Has Had Enough" would go for a nice long walk and neglect to avoid the first uncovered man-hole she finds, I would feel a lot better.

Council Should Assist In Fight on Blue Law

Mayor Mackey, of Philadelphia, is proving himself to be an inspiring influence in behalf of modernization of the Sunday observance law of Pennsylvania, familiarly known as the Blue Law of 1794. Acting on his plea, the Philadelphia City Council named a special committee to study the matter. It will be remembered that the Council of the Quaker City recently adopted a resolution requesting a change in the oppressive old statute. The Philadelphia committee has decided to seek a joint meeting with Pittsburgh Council to get views of its members as to the policy which would unite the solons of the two leading cities of the state in a movement to give their citizens freedom from eighteenth century restrictions that are intolerable in the twentieth.

Pittsburgh Council will be expected to co-operate fully in this matter by the many thousands of citizens who voted for the repeal or modification of the Blue Law in the Sun-Telegraph poll.

Mayor Mackey makes it clear that his attitude in opposition to the Sunday law is not that of an advocate of a "wide-open" Sunday. He said:

"I refuse to be misunderstood in this respect. I am not for a commercial Sunday. I would not, if I could, open the Sabbath day for free, commercial enterprises. I am merely for liberalization to give, particularly our working people, an opportunity for innocent recreation and amusement that they otherwise could not enjoy.

"It is clearly evident that everyone in the pulpit or out of the pulpit, in the church or out of the church, in some particular violates the strict interpretation of this law. (Sunday Blue Laws of 1794.) Therefore, I say it is time to end this bigotry, this regime of intolerance and this false morality."

There is no doubt that this speaks the mind of several million people in the state of Pennsylvania, although many would go farther and permit real "home rule" in municipalities or counties. It is known that the big majority in both Philadelphia and Pittsburgh want the Blue Law repealed absolutely. Other populous places, like Scranton, Reading, Erie, Wilkes-Barre, Altoona, very probably reflect the same attitude. In fact the average for the state very likely can be judged by the sentiment in Allegheny County, as represented in figures of the Sun-Telegraph poll from townships, boroughs and cities.

Magistrates Should Not Profit by Convictions

The Borough Council of West Homestead has passed an ordinance depriving the burgess of the right to put into his own pocket the costs that he imposes on convicted persons when he sits as a magistrate. He is to have a straight salary, instead of fees, as remuneration for his work.

There is good ground for suspicion that the ordinance, passed at a special meeting which lasted only five minutes, was in revenge for the burgess' action in vetoing a measure raising the pay of borough employes; but while the motive may not have been creditable there is no question that the principle of the new plan is sound. Magistrates ought never to profit personally by finding defendants guilty.

This was clearly brought out by the United States Supreme Court a few years ago in a decision written by the late Chief Justice William H. Taft. A man found guilty of some infraction of the automobile regulations by an Ohio magistrate, who personally received some of the fees imposed in the case, appealed to the highest tribunal. The Supreme Court reversed the conviction and pointed out in forceful language that it was in violation of the Constitution for a judge to sit in a case in which he stood to gain financially from a verdict of guilty.

Notwithstanding this clear ruling the Pennsylvania Legislature has done nothing to change the system under which our squires collect costs from convicted persons; and since the costs amount to only a few dollars and an appeal to the United States Supreme Court requires an expenditure of hundreds, even thousands of dollars, people continue to submit to the system.

There is danger in the system, as was demonstrated by that notorious "fining squire" in the eastern part of the state who found some excuse for fining and imposing costs on nearly every strange motorist that passed through the town.

Of course most of the magistrates are just, but to the occasional venal one there is strong temptation to find a verdict of guilty, even if not warranted by the evidence, when a conviction puts money in his pocket. Better that the magistrate be on a straight salary, as the West Homestead burgess is to be.

Some County Fair!

The Season Opens With Eclat at Ebensburg.

The season of county fairs has started brilliantly, with Vice President Charles Curtis and Charles M. Schwab in attendance at Cambria County's great show at Ebensburg.

From now until late in the autumn the fairs will be held. They serve a useful purpose, not only by providing entertainment but by promoting agricultural education. For it is in the farming communities that the fairs flourish most luxuriantly, and it is in the display of farm products, farm machinery and farming methods that they accomplish the most good.

Pennsylvania's many county fairs direct attention to the fact that this is a great agricultural state—a fact that is often overlooked by reason of the dominance of our manufacturing and mining industries. In the production of wheat, apples, dairy products and a number of other things Pennsylvania stands high. And it is a noteworthy fact that Pennsylvania's farmers do not clamor for "relief."

Poky Drivers

Their Proper Place Is Next to the Curb.

The horror caused by the death of two persons whose car, struck by another machine on the Boulevard of the Allies, crashed through a guard rail and went over the bluff, has resulted in increased vigilance on the part of the police. Let us hope it is to be permanent.

Among the commendable new things that are being done is to warn motorists who are dawdling along, while well towards the center of the street, either to increase their speed or pull over next to the curb.

These poky drivers are responsible for a good many mishaps. The autoist traveling in the same direction who wishes to pass them must either violate the rules by passing them on the right, with its risk that the dawdlers may suddenly turn to the right themselves, or, passing them on the left, run the hazard of collision with cars coming in the opposite direction.

The slowpokes should be allowed to run as slowly as they like, but they should be required to stay as far on the right hand side of the street as they can get.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

A high-yielding variety of cultivated sugar cane was crossed with a wild Javanese cane which, though very resistant to disease, contains no sugar at all.

Selection among the descendants, together with the judicious admixture of genes from other cultivated varieties, led by 1924 to the production of this new and really marvelous P.O.J. 2878. Its field tests took two more years, and it then began to be grown commercially on the large scale.

H. G. Wells

Incidentally, it is very interesting to find that the improved variety has 120 chromosomes instead of the 40 of its principal cultivated ancestor, in this respect providing a striking parallel with wheat, whose high-yielding varieties all have 42 chromosomes instead of the 14 of the most primitive wild wheats.

Java is smaller than England, but, though almost entirely agricultural, has more people in it.

The feeding of these multiplying millions is becoming a serious problem. . . Mendel in his monastery garden; Hertwig and Boveri and the other cytologists straining their eyes down their microscopes to look at chromosomes; Morgan in his "fly-room" at Columbia—who could imagine that their work would so soon, and on such a grand scale, help to solve Java's problems?

Section 9. Is Inbreeding Evil?

There may be religious taboos upon its practice among human beings, such as are evidenced in the Tables of Consanguinity to be seen on the walls of our churches, or there may be rational (or at least rationalized) objections urged against it, as in the widespread opposition to cousin marriages on the ground that they will produce defective children or the reluctance of many animal breeders to risk degeneration of their stock by close inbreeding.

Now, it is perfectly true that in general if an animal or plant stock is consistently inbred (for example, by means of brother-to-sister matings) its vigor, its size, its fertility and its economic worth will slowly fall off. But this is not by any means a universal law.

There are plenty of cases where inbreeding is not harmful in the least.

Many breeds of domesticated animals and plants are very closely inbred and show no evident degeneration. This is true, for example, of the St. Bernard dog, of Jersey and Guernsey cattle and, indeed, of many breeds of cattle, horses, sheep and dogs.

Pigs, on the other hand, are not usually so closely inbred and they "degenerate" much more readily on inbreedings. In nature there are many species which as a rule, and even invariably, fertilize themselves.

Among plants such familiar forms as beans, wheat and tobacco may be cited; among animals certain parasites such as Sacculina and tapeworms—which, in spite of their ethical level, are very efficient parasites!

After twenty generations of this her rats were all the better for it; the average weight was higher, the fertility (number of young per litter) had increased, and even the individual life span had lengthened a little.

Today, after more than fifty generations of inbreeding, the strain is still going strong, a standing proof that inbreeding is not harmful per se.

In general, nevertheless, it is true that an inbred stock degenerates. And the opposite is also true; a cross between separate strains usually produces strong, vigorous offspring. Everybody has heard of the stimulating effect of "fresh blood" on a race.

Pig breeders who want rapidly maturing animals for bacon are in the habit of crossing two different breeds, for they know that the hybrid animal will grow up more rapidly than either stock. The same method is often practiced, for the same reason, with cattle, sheep and poultry. Even when the result of a cross is sterile it may exceed its parents in vigor.

SCALING KANCHANJANGA

By Archibald Henderson

Near the eastern end of the Karakoram Range, in Sikkim, towers aloft Kanchanjanga, the second loftiest peak in the world. Kanchanjanga is a Tibetan word and signifies "the five repositories of the great glacier." The more poetic name for this mountain titan, Kong-lo-chu, is in the Lepcha tongue, which means "the highest screen of curtain of snows." Kanchanjanga is not a single towering eminence, like Everest, but a mighty mountain mass, with two overlopping eminences.

"As seen from Darjeeling," says L. H. Robbins, "50 miles away, across the misty intervening valleys, it seems to hang in the sky like a celestial vision, something apart from earth. And apart from earth, in a sense, it is, for no man has trod its snowy cap, very few men have seen it in its full glory, and only a handful have set foot on its snowy slopes. Cold and terrible in age-old majesty, it stands waiting for those who dare its wrath."

The natives, who have a superstitious dread of this great massif, believe that it is guarded by the Mio-go, the "Abominable Snowmen," who dwell upon its summit. It is difficult for the natives to understand why the white strangers are so eager to climb these awful summits. Perhaps the best answer was given by Gen. Bruce, in answer to the inquiry of a lama at Rongbuk monastery, why the strangers wished to brave the dangers of frost and snow, of tempest and blizzard, in the effort to climb Mount Everest. Bruce explained: "We are on a pilgrimage. In my country there is a sect that worship mountains. We have come a far journey over land and sea to worship the highest mountain."

Various attempts have been made during the past half century to scale this titanic peak. The attempts of W. W. Graham, in 1883, are recognized as brilliant exhibitions of skillful mountain climbing. Several lofty peaks were scaled, and it is claimed, though the claim is disputed, that Graham attained to the summit of Kabru itself. Kabru is the southern outpost of Kanchanjanga, and towers to the dizzy altitude of 24,000 feet. A native surveyor named Rinsing traversed the Jonsong La, a snowy pass north of Kanchanjanga, in 1884.

Another native, Sarat Chandra Das, claimed to have traversed a lofty pass north of Kanchanjanga. And Sir Claude White, with a single companion, in 1891, discovered the beautiful peak of Siniolchum, which has been called the "embodiment of inaccessibility." They even attained the Zemu Glacier, which lies to the east of Kanchanjanga itself.

A genuinely scientific expedition of exploration was led by Douglas Freshfield in 1899. Although adverse weather prevented an attempt to scale Kanchanjanga, Freshfield and his party made a thorough analysis of the terrain and laid down the best modes for attacking the problem in the future.

In 1905, a persistent attempt to scale Kanchanjanga was made by a party of three Swiss, Dr. Jacot-Guillarmod, M. Reymond and Lieut. Pache, and an Italian named de Righi—all under the leadership of Aleister Crowley. They pitched their highest camp at 20,343 feet, and some members of the party climbed 1,000 feet higher. They were still almost 7,000 feet from the summit.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Says she to me—"I read your articles regularly but they always jar me. I admit you have a few bright thoughts, but you spoil everything by talking about yourself and your experiences. Don't you know that is bad taste?"

Yep, lady, I know it's bad taste. And I understand also how riled it must make you. Once upon a time I, too, was a lady. And tried to keep all the rules. I had been taught, as you were taught, that to speak of oneself was the height of bad breeding. So I kept my griefs and blunders to myself as if they were something unique and holy. And in time I came to believe that they really were.

But presently life shoved me out into the thick of things and I got a big jolt. I discovered that all about me there were millions of other grieving, blundering human beings. And there wasn't a particle of difference between their griefs and blunders and my griefs and blunders. Foolishness was all of a piece and heartbreak was all of a piece—I had nothing on the other fellow and the other fellow had nothing on me.

So a little understanding came to me and a great deal of pity. I wanted to help these other people whose lives were as jumbled as mine. And I tried to help them in the ways I had been taught to help—the refined, well-bred ways which all ladies are supposed to use. But I couldn't get my stuff across. No one wanted my pretty speeches. No one cared a hoot about my wise advice. What were words to them? They had words enough of their own. And how could good manners help when a fellow is in a jam? They needed something warmer—quicker—

And so, lady, I got all over being well-bred. And nowadays I don't give a rap what I say or how I say it, as long as it helps me, with my fibs and my foolishness, my selfishness and cowardice, my aching heart and my so frequently empty head. For that gift of my muddled self is the only thing that will help him with his muddled self and that feeling of our common misery is more comfort and inspiration to him than 1,000 smooty sermons, be they ever so refined.

And I suspect that what goes for writing columns, also goes for living life. Often I've thought how Christ, as His last gift, shared the bread and wine of the Passover with those working men he loved. Simple stuff, that sour wine and unleavened bread.

Common as the lives it nourished. Yet, by that act He bound His men more closely to Him than by the most elaborate ritual. For, by sharing that simple meal, they shared forever His tears and sweat, His faith and prayers and everlasting hope. And that common touch of His human hands, as He broke the bread, was to comfort men through all the years to come.

It's a far cry from the Last Supper to a columnist's daily grind. But if, beyond the page you're seeing faces you love—dear foolish faces, troubled and shamed and bewildered like your own, are you going to stop and wonder how to act well-bred? Or are you going to reach out and give them all you have—the common stuff of your own humanity?

LADY, I'M GOING TO REACH AND IF YOU DON'T LIKE MY REACH—DUCK!

Meeting a Stranger

Opening a door upon novel scenes.
Leading down paths which are yet unknown
Into new realms I may make my own!
Strangers have shown to me lovely ways,
Glimpses that brightened once-somber days,
Strangers have taught me to prize anew
Truths I had almost forgotten were true;
Clear and keen was the light they brought,
Casting its rays on my quickened thought.
Sometimes, treading a crowded street,
Strangers have smiled and the world has grown sweet.
Meeting a stranger lends life fresh charm,
Day grows brighter, the heart more warm;
Here is a door that is swinging wide,
Treasure may wait on the other side!

Text For Today

I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not; and when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren.—Luke, XXII:32.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. Dr. F. Bockelman, pastor, German Trinity Evangelical Church, North Side.)

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Perfect Team Work

Every administration has featured its noble and altruistic Senator who radiated squawks under the title of watch dog of the treasury.

"Bugs" Baer

He is the man who protects the people's money right down to their last dime.

He starts on combustion, protests on suspicion and doesn't seem to realize that a scarecrow frightens no birds if its clothes fit tight.

We cannot tell who is the watch dog of this administration because they are all barking on one end and wagging on the other.

The graduating class of the 1930 Senate will launch itself into history as our most famous kennels. It disputed everything, concedes nothing and passes more bills than an Elk at a convention.

When the bills are all neatly crocheted they are sent to the White House for a little drop-stitching. There Mr. Hoover gets out his one-cylinder fountain pen and discovers that he hasn't got any more ink than a stuffed squid.

Mr. Hoover's veto average is very high. He is so fast on the senatorial bases that he has been known to score from second on a sneeze.

The only documents he has signed so far are complaint blanks and other tariff increases. The Senate is always threatening to pass a bill over the presidential hat. The result is a dignified squabble that makes Europe think we do not love one another.

Why doesn't Mr. Hoover and the Senate get together and talk it over? The President is the first citizen of the land and there is no use trying to nose him out.

Why should the Senate burn up our time voting for bills that haven't got any more destination than an anchored buoy?

The Senate has been pitching to Mr. Hoover for over a year. He has fouled every curve and inshoot into the bleachers.

We would like to see a bill, even if it's only a measure compelling yaks to braid their whiskers when touring through incorporated villages, passed by the Senate and signed by the President without all that shadow-boxing, footwork and tentative jabbing.

All we want to know is if it can be done. And if it cannot why don't we send Amos and Andy to the Senate from Arkansas? They at least have continuity. And they sign off when they are finished talking.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS: A journey to Paris for an American must include a dinner at Ciro's and a seat at the Folies Bergere. Ciro's has been refurbished and like every other decor in Paris has gone completely modernistic. Its tiny bar expands into a sizable room with space for a dozen tables.

The elect sit in the bar but there is still the "little room" for favorites. The big room remains for hoi polloi. The urbane Maurice and Julien continue to execute their jack-knife bows at the entrance—the most expert pair of carpet kissers on the continent and at the same time the haughtiest.

Maurice is reputed to remember every name of important Ciro patrons. He addressed me as "M'soo McGonigle"—thus establishing my importance. Outside of the prices the most impressive thing about Ciro's is its cosmopolitanism. Almost every nation is represented nightly. The food is unsurpassed and you may nearly always see Beth Leary there.

The Folies, which now happily bars all usher and program tipping, is one of the two leading musical revues. The other is at the Casino de Paris, the latter being more popular with Parisians. The audience at the Folies, save for two mannishly dressed and monocled ladies and an American Negro in full evening dress, was little different from a New York audience.

At the Folies one may purchase flap seats without backs attached to aisle chairs at half price. Thus in case of fire the aisles are almost impassable. The occupant of such a pew next to mine smoked something that suggested being to the windward of the Chicago stock yards on a breezy day.

The performance was the usual umbilical display, very naughty, but with a half dozen arresting scenes—one with a bevy of almost nude blondes slithering about in the air in sinuous swoops brought the audience to its feet at a bound. The theme song is a bold steal of "Ain't Misbehavin'."

At the intermission everybody drifts out to the bar and the huge drinking salon where the "percentage cocottes" with arched smiles angle for drinks. Downstairs is a "Danse du Ventre" where for a few francs one may twirl with the hired and remarkably beautiful hostesses. Behold your watch!

Night clubs in Paris offer the same deadly monotony of Broadway. Here, as back home, whatever night club you visit you wish you had gone to another. We tried Le Perroquet and found the usually bored and listless crowd sitting about in a haze of smoke and smileless ambiguity. And they still try to sell you those flopping long-legged dolls.

After Le Perroquet, we made a brief stop at Joe Zelli's where Zelli continues to clap his hands and cry: "Show the Prince the royal box!" in greeting every newly arrived sucker. The crowd was thin but it was only 1 a. m. and the didoes do not really begin at Zelli's until 3 a. m.

About dawn — and dawns are always gloriously pink here—this morning there was a noise in the hall as though a group of Frenchmen in wooden shoes were playing leap frog. It developed a young American slightly vin triste, had tried to operate the bird cage sized elevator on his own and was stuck between floors. He then tried to kick his way to liberty.

Parisian skies have been weeping at intervals daily for six weeks. The boulevard outside my window is at the moment bobbing with umbrellas and the line of chestnut trees glisten and drip with rain. A heavy sweater vest is comforting. Yet in a half hour the sun will likely be as resplendent as (tip to the Chamber of Commerce: Grab this one quick!) in San Diego at noon day. Rain somehow is not annoying in Paris. It is a part of the city's volatile mood.

The old Gallic saying "plus ca change, plus c'est la meme chose" does not apply to the famed Champs Elysees. It is dotted with block long building gaps and ultra modernistic structures are arising, for France at least, with feverish haste. The per capita wealth of France is the highest in its turbulent history. There is no unemployment.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Often you feel that you would like to act more sensibly, but it seems that most people enjoy the light and somewhat foolish things.

Naturally the individual adopts a line he or she considers pleasing.

Persons who are far from being friends, while not out and out enemies, to all appearances are much interested in one another.

They are enthusiastic and apparently much interested in what others have to say, and create opportunities to make some gracious remarks.

The tendency to be deceitful grows into actual insincerity, as more practice is needed to keep up an appearance of greater interest by those whose love of society keeps them going to social functions.

Men and women need to cultivate a social spirit and a feeling of good fellowship among their associates, but when appearances do not ring true there is something lost of real pleasure.
